DIDN'T PAY HIS POLL TAX and Now Wants to Be Governor, but

Little Rock, Ark., August 8.—It was dis-tovered today that D. E. Barker, the popu-list candidate for governor, had not paid his poli tax. This makes him incilligible to

A Deadlock Broken.

Galveston, Tex., August 8.—The tenth district congressional deadlock at Halletts-ville, was broken this morning and State Senator Miles Crowley, of this city, was nominated on the first ballot as the democratic nominee for congress from this district. This was the result of a caucus by the Gresham and Lane factions last night. On receiving the nomination, Mr. Crowley thanked the convention and said he would, in November, poll such a large vote that the district would be no longer doubtful, Crowley has served one term in the Texas house of representatives, and is now a member of the state senate from this district. He is the state senate from this district. He is purely a self-made man, and before his en-trance upon the political arena, as was a cotton screw man. Since entering politics he has studied law, and was admitted to the bar about a year ago.

Richmond, Va., August 8.-The democrat ic congressional convention for this, the third congressional district, which assembled here today, nominated Colonel Taze well Elliott on the first ballot. After the nominations were all made and a ballot taken the committee on resolutions presented the following which was adopted:

"Resolved, That the committee on resolu-tions deems it unnecessary for this conven-tion to promulgate a platform for this district, inasmuch as our candidate and the democrats of the district are pledged to promote the best interests of all the people, and will stand in the approaching cam-paign, as in the past, for the well known principles of the democratic party."

IT LOOKS SERIOUS,

And the Government May Have to Call Out the Troops Today.

Omaha, Neb., August 8 .- The crisis arrived tonight and if there is no improve ment by morning several companies of militia will be sent to south Omaha and the packing house district will be placed under martial law. The situation is most serious tonight and the 1,100 strikers have been doing about as they please.

The packing house managers held a conference and at its close Mr. Cudahy notified the adjutant general that unless the workmen could be given adequate protection all the packing houses would be compelled to close down tomorrow. He said the managers do not feel like endangering their plants by keeping them at work while their men are in danger of assassination.

In the evening the governor and the adjutant general met the packers to discuss the matter. The packers decided that the situation was most serious, and the governor finally concluded to do nothing until morn ing, and then, if there was no improvement, to call for troops.

There Is a Prospect That Today Will Settle the Tariff.

CONFEREES BAVE ALMOST AGREED

Still There Is Many a Slip Twixt Cup and Lip.

BOTH SIDES MADE CONCESSIONS

Free Iron Is Yielded by the Benate and Sugar Takes a Flat Duty-A Sliding Scale for Coal.

Washington, August 8.-The "tomorrow" upon which the tariff conferees have been for some weeks promising an agreement at last gives promise of fulfillment. When the tariff conferees adjourned at a few minutes before 6 o'clock tonight it was with the understanding that at the session tomorrow morning all the details should be arranged and the republicans called in the afternoon and informed of what their democratic colleagues had done.

One of the most promient managers on the part of the senate made the emphatic statement that tomorrow would see the end of the conference, and that by nightfall there would be either an agreement or a general break up of the conference. But one thing, he said, could postpone the result any longer. Should the house conferees agree to an agreement and the arrangement of the details consume such time as to run the work over into the next day, that would be permitted, but otherwise the close tomorrow would witness the end of the labors of the conferees on the tariff bill. So little is yet to be accomplished, however, that there is every likelihood that the republicans can be called in at an early hour, and there would be no surprise if the senate should have the report of the conferees at a reasonably early hour in the afternoon. The hitch that still remains for settlement is iron ore and coal. So far as the principle is concerned these items seem to be disposed of finally-one of them is to be free and the other made dutiable. These matters were the subject of three distinct changes today. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon it was decided that iron ore should be made free absolutely, and that coal should retain the rate of 40 cents a ton fixed by the senate for a period of five years, at the end of which time it was to be free. Sub-sequently a proposition was made to fix a sliding scale that should reduce the duty a specific percentage each year. This was antagonized, but the house men, anxious to get in as much in the way of concession as possible, persisted, and the result was that this matter was left until tomorrow morn-ing for final decision.

All the Conferees Happy.

At the conclusion of the conference all the members from both sides of the capitol appeared to be in a very happy frame of mind, and there appeared to be very good mind, and there appeared to be very good reason for their statements that an agreement would soon be made. One of the managers on the part of the senate said that if there was an agreement the sugar schedule would remain as it was published in these dispatches on Friday of last week, to-wit: Forty per cent on raw sugar, 40 per cent on the raw sugar in the refined and 1-5 of a cent differential on refined sugar. This senator also said that he had some credence two or three days ago to the effect that the basis of collection of the duty on refined sugar was to be the duty collected on 105 pounds of raw sugar for every 100 pounds of refined sugar. As far, then, as sugar is concerned, it has cut no figure in the conference, and is looked upon the conferees as settled.

Lead ore, about which there has been a great deal of quiet talk, is said to be in the same way. An effort was made in some quarters to have the house rate—which greatly reduced the du-ties—restored, but this was not done. As ndicated in these dispatches some days ago, the senate rate on tobacco will probaof by the conferees some days ago, will be put back to $1 a gallon, provided for in the house bill, with the proviso, however, that he bonded period may be extended from five to eight years by the payment, after the end of the ave years, of an additional tax of five cents per gallon per year. It is on woolens, cotton goods and the metal schedule have been cut into but little com-

A Gradual Reduction on Coal.

There are indications that the reason the conferees did not finally settle coal and iron ore tonight was that the senate members might have an opportunity of con-sulting with their colleagues to see how the proposition submitted in conference was received. The latest proposition is to put iron ore on the free list and reduce the duty on coal 5 cents per annum until it gradually reaches the free list, a proposition that will not be nearly so acceptable as the other which leaves it untouched for five years. A careful canvass of the senate showed the senate conferees that they could not touch coal without imperiling the bill, while iron ore might be tamp ed with without having that disastrous ef-was called upon by one of the conferees this evening for advice as to how he and his colleagues should act in this matter and was told that the day for giving rdvice had was told that the day for giving advice had passed. The conferees might now, this senator said, bring in any kind of a report they pleased and the senate would vote upon it. Tomorrow will probably see this report and it does not necessarily follow that the senate will accept it. The conferees will meet promptly at 10 o'clock, but no one can tell tonight just when their republican associates will be admitted to the secrets of the conference room. secrets of the conference room.

A Bluff Called.

It may be, however, that the senate conferees may have more trouble than they anticipate in removing the objections of their house colleagues to certain things that transpired in the committee room today. There was ample ground for the many conflicting rumors that were flying about con-cerning coal and iron. At one stage of the proceedings the senate conferees took the bull by the horns and told the house conbull by the horns and told the house of inferees they could have either coal or iron ore free, and the house promptly accepted coal. Then began the canvass of the conservatives to see what would be the result of thir compromise. It was seen at once that such a scheme doomed the bill to failure, and made such men as Faulkner, Pugh, Camden and Gorman indignant. The senate conferees went back and told their associates that they could not grant the associates that they could not grant the concession, and despair once more reigned in the committee room. Almost in despair the house men finally accepted free iron ore as a salve for their injuries, but subsequently insisted that they should have that which was originally given them. This was the condition of affairs when the conference adjourned for the night.

That a report of some kind will be forthcoming tomorrow is almost a certainty. What its fate will be the next few hours will tell. This element of the senate, active and alert to embrace every opportunity to defeat the bill, has not been idle. During the afternoon session of the senate the ing the afternoon session of the senate the succeeded in keeping strictly secret all that they did. Tonight quite a gathering of the leaders met at Senator McMillan's resileaders met at Senator McMillan's residence for dinner, and it is safe to assume that the political side of the tariff fight was discussed between the courses. When asked tonight what the policy of the minority would be, Mr. Aldrich, the republican leader, remarked that they had no policy and would have none until they knew what the democrats intended to do. With a smile Aldrich observed that the republicans would be about the capitol tomorrow and would keep their eyes open.

On its being known that the bounty on this year's sugar crop is not to be given this year's sugar crop is not to be given there is much concern among democrats to know what course Messrs. Caffery and Flanchard will assume towards the bill. Mr. Caffery declines to talk, but rests on the speech he made recently in the senate, when he declared, that it would be his duty. when he declared that it would be his duty to consider the interests of his state be-fore he did that of the party at large. This is interpreted as being a threat that he will not support the bill. Both the Louislana senators are receiving large numbers of telegrams urging them to vote against the bill unless the bounty is given and the two leading democratic organs in New Orleans this morning announced that the two senators would, under the circumstances, be justified in voting against the bill.

Messrs. Kyle and Allen are also quoted as saying that they could not endorse the bill unless it provided for a bounty on sugar. In view of the fact that these four votes are essential to the success of the bill, how they will be cast will have much to do with the future of tariff reform in this congress.

Mr. Jones declared that the bill will pass, but there are others who hesitate to make any prophecy. Mr. Brice is inclined to think that the senate will not accept the conference report, if it materially changes the senate bill, but says the senate will amend the bill by moving to recede and after so perfecting it will send it back to the house and let them pass it. Mr. Brice is of the opinion that if the bill comes into the hands of the senate again it will refuse to grant another conference, but that the bill will, after being perfected, pass and be-come a law. Others anticipate trouble and expect some delay in debate. Mr. Jones and all of his associates on the conference com-mittee hold that a motion to indefinitely postpone or to lay the conference report or the table will not be in order and that this motion cannot be made. Under the senate rules a majority can make any ruling it pleases and if there should be a majority in favor of postponing the conference report it would be an easy matter to sustain an appeal from the decision of the chair. It is this vote that is feared and the apparent indifference of the conservatives to the report that may be made only adds to the uneasiness of those in charge of the bill. If the bill should get into the senate tomorrow night or Friday morning it is likely that whatever action the senate takes would be speedy and certain.

RAIDERS HELD IN CHECK.

A Charge Was Made on the Treasury but It Was Headed.

Washington, August 8 .- (Special.) -- Speaker Crisp's forethought and Judge Maddox, with a few other stalwart democrats, kept the treasury from being raided today to the amount of $10,000,000 or $15,000,000. The day had been set aside for the committee on public buildings and grounds. No sooner had the day's business commenced than a mammoth combination of the east and west, headed by the Chicago delegation. which wanted $4,000,000 for a building, and New York, which wanted $3,000,000 more for a new appraisers' building, showed its head. Besides these two claims nearly every district between the two sections wanted something from a $50,000 to a $100,000 appropria-

The combination was the strongest which had appeared in congress this session, for it was able to carry every appropriation in the combination through. There were about six democrats who fought it. Judge Maddox was the leader of the small minority, and he noted every time a quorum was lacking and demanded the same. When not doing this he was demanding the tellers and the ayes and nays. This continued until 7 o'clock when the combination began to call for members, intending to get a quorum and adjourn over the legislative day. But for the foresight of the speaker they would have kept this up until every appropriation in the combination, amounting to about $15,000,000, had been passed.

Finally some one called the attention of Bourke Cockran to the rule which set aside the day. The usual term "legislative day" did not appear in the rule, but instead was inserted "calendar day." The calendar day ends always at midnight, whereas legislative day can be continued indefinitely. But with Maddox, Bland and other watch dogs on deck, the combination gave up the fight and the house adjourned. Mr. Catchings said Speaker Crisp feared some such combination and precluded the possibility of the raid by the wording of his rule.

A Close Watch Being Kept. The conferees on the civil sundry bill are holding prolonged sessions each day, but little progress seems to be made. The Georgia delegation are keeping a tab on the conference every hour it is in session. Senators Walsh and Gordon are keeping the private conferees up to the line and Representative Livingston is keeping watch over Mr. Sayers. Mr. Livingston said today that he had no fear at all for the appropriation. This was in response to many telegrams from anxious friends.

Democracy's Majority in Alabama Is in Round Numbers 26,000.

THE LEGISLATURE IS EASILY SAFE

Captain Kolb's Claim of Fraud Has No Plausible Foundation.

HIS OWN COUNTIES WENT AGAINST HIM Chairman Tompkins Reviews the Election

the Cry of Ballot Box Stuffing,

Montgomery, Ala., August 8.-(Special.)-The election returns today have not materially altered the footing of The Constitution's estimate.

The changes in most cases favor the democrats and the best estimate tonight gives Oates a majority of 26,086.

Autauga reports 423 majority for Oates, Bibb 517 for Kolb. Blount 140 for Kolb, Calhoun 407 for Oates, Chambers 439 for Kolb, Cherokee 770 for Kolb. Oates's majority is increased to something like 6,400 in Daflas, to about 1.179 in Monroe and to 6.000 in Wilcox. Jefferson county goes for Oates by 117 majority. The majority in Hale will be reduced probably within 2,000 and in Lowndes to within 3,500. Marengo will also drop a hundred or so and the democrats are claiming Pickens by about 500. Kolb gets 52 majority in Covington. The Kolbites here appear to have surrendered. They are evidently awaiting the instructions of the conference at Birmingham. It was figured out tonight at the democatic headquarters here that the democrats have 63 of the 100 members of the lower house and 23 of the 33 state senators, not counting Mr. Moody, of the Tuscaloosa district.

A Baseless Claim.

In an interview today Chairman Tompkins, of the democratic executive committee, said: "Kolb's claim that he has been defrauded out of his election, considered in the light of the undisputed facts, is so absolutely baseless as to be ridiculous. His majority, in counties carried by him, amount in the aggregate to 14,000. Oates's majority in the counties carried by him, leaving out Barbour, Bullock, Dallas, Hale, Lowndes, Marengo, Madison, Montgomery and Wilcox, the only counties which Kolb challenges amount in the aggregate to 12,060, leaving Kolb only 2,000 ahead.

"Ine white vote in the nine countles left out of the above calculation, according to the census of 1890, amounts in the aggre-

"It is a well known fact, too well to be disputed, that not more than one-tenth of those white voters were supporters of Kolb. It is equally as well known that the number of negroes who have for many years, ever since they were given the suffrage, voted the democratic ticket in those counties at least equals the whites who are supporters of Kolb.

Oates Has 26,000 Majority. "Oates's majority in those nine countles could not have been less than 15,000. From this it is shown that, even admitting everything that Kolb claims, it is clear that instead of being elected Kolb is defeated by not less than 13,000. Many negroes openly voted the democratic ticket. This was particularly the case in Kolb's old county, Barbour, and in Oates's old home, Eufaula, Ala., it was natural that they should have done so and it would have been very strange if they had not. In the recent riots in Jefferson county the governor used the whole power of the state to protect the negroes against the murderous assaults of those who were supporters of Kolb. This action of the governor was universally en-dorsed by the democratic press, speakers and people, while the press and speakers of the opposition as universally condemned the governor for his action.

"If the negroes under such circums ances had not supported the democratic party they would have shown that they did not possess even ordinary gratitude. "Governor-elect Oates was open and avowed in his endorsements of the action of Governor Jones and naturally the negroes voted for him. This man Kolb has always cried fraud. He, according to his own admission, has frequently been a party to fraudulent practices in elections; he assumes that the democrats use the same means to obtain their majority that he admits having used himself. "The two countles not heard from reparred to-day. One, Baldwin gave a sr majority for Oates, and the other, C ington, about offset it with a majority for No¹b. This settles the democratic majority at 26,006. The legislature will stand: Senat .. 24 democrats and 9 opposition; house 62 democrats and 38 opposition."

JEFFERSON IS VERY CLOSE. A Straight Out Delegation, However

Goes to the Legislature. Birmingham, Ala., August 8.—(Special.)— The returns from the state election are virtually all in, and the result is what was an ticipated by the most conservative supporters of Hon. William Oates. The democrats have carried thirty-one counties, fourteen in the black belt, and seventeen white counties. While the returns indicate tha Jefferson has gone for Kolb by 17 majority the result can only be known when the of-ficial count has been declared. The fact is undisputed by Kolbites, however, that Jef ferson will send O'Brien, John McQueen Montgomery Lipscomb and Fulton to Mont-gomery as representatives, all of whom are died-in-the-wool democrats. The state leg-islature is safe beyond dispute, and a con-test on the part of the g_nial Reuben, will result in simply nothing. His cry of fraud was anticipated. The fact is he cried fraud beforehand.

They Look Solemn!

Birmingham, August 9.—The conference of Kolb leaders has been in session all day and up to 1 o'clock this morning.

They finally adjourned without completing their resolutions or address to the public, which they promise to give to the press tomorrow afternoon. There is an air of mystery and solemnity about them when they appear on the streets, and they dethey appear on the streets, and they de-cline to talk at all. The Official Vote of Dallas.

Selma, Ala., August 8.—(Special.)—The official count has been completed. The total vote polled in Dallas county was 5,885. The county gives Oates 5,756, Kolb 129. Oates's majority, 5,627.

Birmingham, Ala., August 8.—(Special.)—W. L. Webb, a contracting railroad constructionist of Lamont, Ill., suicided hast night in the Southern hotel by shooting limself through the head with a pistol.

No one heard the shot when is was fired, and it was not known until this morning He left a letter addressed to the proprietor of the hotel stating that he was in his right mind and that the cause was finan-cial circumstances.

SEVERE STORMS ON THE GULF. Vessels Drng Their Anchors in Pensacola Harbor-The Catherine Lost. Pensacola, Fla., August 8.-(Special.)-Last night this city was visited by one or the worst storms ever known here. The wind came in great gusts from the gulf, driving torrents of rain, which fell without ceasing throughout the night. Nearly every house in the city has felt the effects of the storm. The water was driven by the gale under the roofs, flooding rooms and doing great damage to wall paper and plastering. Trees and fences are down in all portions of the city. Nearly all the vessels in the harbor dragged their anchors and the Norwegian bark, Thiowa, came near going on the beach, All trains running into the city are delayed by tracks being washed out. The Norwegian ship, Catharine, which went ashore on Santa Rosa island, will be a total loss. She is now lying in seven feet of water and is rapidly going to pieces.

GOING SLOW NOW.

The Government Is Not Getting Much Evidence Against Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., August 8.—(Special.)— Special Agent Burns, of the secret service bureau in Washington, who was sent to Mississippi by Chief Hazen to see the governor about the Mississippi special warno demands on the governor and is personally trying to find where special warrants have been unwittingly taken for United States currency or national bank notes.

General Walthall was in the city today and in response to an inquiry, said: "I sustain the governor's position fully with reference to the special warrants, and am unable to see how any serious question could arise in the matter growing out of the United States statute on the subject of counterfeiting." By his decision Albert C. Kerwan becomes shipping commissioner at the port of Baltimore, Md. vice Littleton T. Bayden, removed. Bayden's resignation was called for more than a year ago, but he refused to resign, tak-ing the position that under the act creating the office of shipping commissioner the sec-retary has no power to remove him without specific causes, which, so far as known, was not alleged in this case. Today the secretary removed Bayden. The shipping act in question says: "The secretary may from time to time remove from office such commissioners whom he may have reason to believe do not properly perform their du-

GEORGIA'S FARMERS.

Semi-Annual Convention of the State Agricultural Society.

PRESIDENT WADDELL ADDRESSES IT

States That He Will Never Again Be a Candidate for Public Office.

Carrollton, Ga., August 8 .- (Special.)-The August meeting of the Georgia State Agricul-tural Society has brought here a large number of representative farmers. Rev. A. W. Williams opened the convention with prayer. Speeches of welcome were made by Mayor G. H. West, of Carrollton; W. F. Brown and J. S. Cobb, of Carroll county. Dr. E. D. Newton, of Athens, spoke for the society. President Waddell delivered an address thanking the railroads for their courtesy to the delegates and putting in a good word for the roads. He advised the good word for the roads. He advised the farmers to raise more of the products they consume, and he touched on state aid for fairs. "The inspection fees which are paid by the farmers are sufficient to meet the expenses of both the departments and the experimental station," he said, "and pays into the treasury of the state a snug surplus which is placed to the credit of the common school fund. Besides the experiment was established with funds donated in greater part by the general government. In greater part by the general government.

I positively assert that the railroads have done infinitely more for the society and the cause of agriculture than have the leg-islatures during the past fifteen years. From the state, during that time, we have not received one dollar. The railroads, on the contrary, have made large contributions in money, they have transported county exhibmoney, they have transported county exhib-its to and from the state fairs free. To the fairs to and from the state fairs free. To the fairs they have given the lowest possible rates and to this society, with but one ex-ception in over twenty years, they have given free transportation both ways to the delegates to our agricultural conventions. They have done more to sustain the society to perpetuate it, than all other agencies combined. The facts sustain those assertions and it is but an act of simple justice to make them.

In closing, Colonel Waddell paid a hand-some tribute to Hon. O. A. Barry, the general vice president, who had resigned to

He referred to the great influence wielded by the society, and gave the members much encouragement for the future.

He argued the importance of educating the children in the rural districts of Georgia, who, taken as a whole, were not being educated. He referred to his home in Hancock, near which there was no white school, but several admirable schools for the negroes. He said it was time to begin developing the brain of Georgia, and he called forth appiause when he said he was unalterably opposed to planting any dynamite in Georgia, to bringing any man here who does not understand our system of government and is opposed to it.

He said further that he was opposed to people who would formulate strife, or who advocated strikes. The great question before Georgia today, he declared, is what to do to benefit the country distriots that they may sustain not only themselves, but the other general interests of the state.

He referred to the people going to Texas, and said that they were going there because they could get better education than in Georgia.

the Petition-Allegations of Fraud Made. The medical colleges are at it with vengeance. A suit has been filed for damages to the extent of $10,000 by the South ern Medical college, the Southern Dental college, the faculty of the Southern Dental college and the board of trustees of the Southern Medical college against J. H. R. Jewett and T. N. Henman and the Atlanta Dental college.
'The allegations made by the Southern Med ical college et al. as against J. Thompson et al. are very direct and smack of sensational. A feature of the suit is the expose that is made of the profits involved in the turning out of a dentist. This profit is figured ou the Southern Medical college et al. at $100, thus giving the general public an in sight into the cost of turning out a fullledged graduate, including a post-graduate course.

It is charged that the defendants, or March ast, filed a petition for charter un-der the name of the Southern Dental collegs, and on May 1st, of the same year, 1893, filed a petition for a charter for the same purpose under the name of the At-lanta Dental college, and that an order was obtained for the Southern Dental college on May 27, 1893, and one for the Atlanta Den tal college on May 30th, 1893, and that de-fendants organized under the name of the Atlanta Dental college. It is then alleged that defendants have not acted in good faith; that they are cers of the Southern Dental college, of the Southern Medical college, and had promised to run it for the benefit of the said medica college for the term of ten years, and that defendants, fraudulently intending to in-jure and damage your petitioners, deter-mined to break up the college aforesaid, the Southern Medical college, and that the de-fendants, having already contracted a large debt for rent of hall and rooms for benefit of dental, and having incurred as the faculty thereof the indebtedness of $3,600, abandoned said college and left it greatly in debt. Enter the Senatorial Race.

HE HAS SOMETHING TO SAY ON ISSUES

It Is His Intention to Make Some Speeches in the Campaign, and He Will Issue an Address.

Athens, Ga., August 8 .- (Special.)-A Constitution correspondent today called upon ex-Congressman H. H. Carlton, of this city, to ascertain the truth of the report published that he would enter the race for the United States senatorship, and also to get his views on the public questions of the

On being asked if it was true that he would enter the race for the senate, he re-

It is true to this extent. When I was in Atlanta in attendance upon the convention quite a number of gentlemen, representing different sections of the state, called upon me and urged me to enter the race. I said to them that it had been my purpose to remain out of politics. I had been urged to run for governor and also for congress, and had declined both races, as my business affairs did not justify me in re-entering public life. But it seemed as if it was not the purpose of my friends to let me retire to private life, so I supposed I would have to yield to their certainly most honorable and urgent request to become a candidate for United States senator. I further said, in justice to myself, that the same obstacles which were in the way of my making an active canvass for either congress or the governorship would obtain with my enter-ing the race for the senatorship. In fact, while I did not hold fully to the Arcadian while I did not not did it is idea in politics, it being so decidedly averse to the present American age, still as I remembered the contest for this, the highest honor in the gift of our commonwealth, had heretofore been confined to the legislature, and not made through a general canvass of the state, and that until the law was vass of the state, and that that the law was changed remanding the election of United States senators direct to the people, I did not deem it wise or proper to attempt to change the bent of our existing custom, nor did the people expect or desire a general canvass of the state."

eral canvass of the state.

"Then, Mr. Carlton, how do you expect to get your claims before the public?"

"I suppose those gentlemen who so earnestly urged me to submit my name for this high position thought there was somewhat of merit in me for the position, and that they will in some measure present to the public what of qualifications I may pos-sess. The truth is, it is not so much what one may say to, as what he has done for which should commend him to popular favor for continuance in public Will you make any speeches before the

Will Make Some Speeches.

"Oh, yes. I shall address the general assembly when it meets, and being already under promise to make some speeches at different points, I shall endeavor to fulfill those engagements. What I meant to say was that I could not undertake to make a general canvass of the state."

Dr. Carlton stated that he expects in a few days to furnish to the press an address to the people of Georgia. I trust it will advertise to every citizen of the state," he said, "exactly where I stand upon all of those questions which now con-front the American people, and render the present perhaps the most critical and perilperiod through which our country has ever passed. "In a mere interview like this, of course you could expect nothing more than a few general ideas. The whole question involved in our national legislation at this time ma, be summed up as follows: The revolutionary party of the north of 'the higher law school, which has ever sought to main-tain our American union without the constitution, and which, when the south in-sisted upon the union with the constitution, precipitated the war between the states, ed and sectional power, simply moved to the halls of congress. Here it is the war must be continued for our constitutional rights. Embolden with the success of arms, they have gone from bad to worse-from the success of armed conflict to usurpa-tion of governmental power; from the usurpation of power to the complete abrogation of all constitutional law and guidance, setting up as their governmental creed the federalistic or centrallistic principles as promulagted by Alexander Hamilton in the convention of 1789. Growing out of this abormal usurpatory and unconstitutional conlition of affairs in our government is the high, protective and prohibitory tariff taxation; levying the burden of taxation upon the already burdened and oppressed many, for the benefit and protection of the plutowatic and government favored few. Like-wise the establishment of national banks, which was the darling project of Alexander Hamilton, in order to mold our free, demo-cratic form of government into a strong and centralized power. In keeping with and supportive of this centralistic enactment was the unconstitutional imposition of th prohibitory 10 per cent tax on all state bank

Commends Both Platforms 'Finally, as a climax to such legislation as had already centralized, at least all of the financial power of our government, in the federal head, was the act of 1875, demonetizing silver in the interest of the creditor class, viz: The bondholders, the gold men and the national banks, against the debtor class, the American people, and thus denying to the trade and commerce of the country the constitutional money of cogovernment, the currency of our fathe se are the grave and important issues which confront us today, and which must be met and settled in the United States congress. The Chicago democratic plat-form of 1892, upon which we all stand un-alterably and immovably, and our state cratic platform, adopted in Atlanta ast week, and which is a sound, democratic and most admirable endorsement and rat fication of the Chicago platform, set forth and fully establish the democratic battle lines upon which must be fought the great for the rights of American freemen, and the perpetuity of our free institutions. With these issues before the country the hext session of the American congress will, in all probability, prove the most impor-tant ever before convened in the history of

The Opposition to the Present Representa-tive May Try to Ring in a Dark Horse. The Result Is Doubt u.

Warm Springs, Ga., August 8 .- (Special.)-Today has been a memorable one for Warm Springs. It has been the scene of one of the most stubborn political contests ever known in the state, and the end is not yet. The convention was called to order at 12 o'clock today by Captain Morgan Mc-Michael, of Columbus, and the anti-Moses men drew first blood by electing T. H. Kimbrough, an anti-Moses man, chairman. It was expected that Mr. Moses would be nominated before the third ballot, but the opposition developed a very strong fight against him and it now looks like either Captain L. L. Stanford, of Harri-county, or some dark horse. On the first ballot Mr. Moses received sixteen votes, four each from Coweta and Troup, and two each from Chattahoochee, Heard, Marion and Talbot. Judge Sampson Harris got eight, four each

Captain L. L. Stanford got four from his captain L. L. Stanford got four from his own county—Harris. On the second ballot, Muscogee changed her vote to Stanford. On the third Meri-wether did the same and Carroll followed on the fifth. One hundred ballots were cast in this order until adjournment for supper. The convention has been split into two factions. The delegates from Carroll, Muscogee and Merlwether say that they will never go to Moses, and declare that they will stick to Harris county's candidate, Colonel Stanford

There is considerable talk of a dark horse, the most prominent of which are Captain W. A. Little, of Columbus, and Hon. War-ner Hill, of Greenville. Mr. Moses arrived at the railroad station, a mile from here, this morning, and expected to return this afternoon but come over tonight. The night session was called to order at 8:30 o'clock and adjourned after an hour's balloting to 10 o'clock tomorrow. One hundled dred and fifty ballots have been cast. There is a great deal of uncertainty in reference to what will be done tomorrow. Some predict that this will be a repetition of the noted fourth district convention of 1878 when the delegates balloted for three weeks and then turned the two candidates. Messrs. Harris and Persons, loose. While a great deal of feeling is displayed by both factions, the monotony of the convention is beginning to be relieved by some of the many good-natured, witty statesmen who are on hand. Amidst it all, Charley Davis is saying keep it up, and is taking care of the crowd of 500 guests here.

A Gallant Soldier, Loved by All.

Savannah, Ga., August 8 .- (Special.)-The nnouncement of the resignation of Colone C. H. Olmstead as president of the Chat-ham bank and of the Georgia State Building and Loan Association created some surprise today, especially in connection with a letter written to a director of the bank, in the beginning of which he stated that he had left Savannah, probably never to return. He left Savannah Saturday night and was in Atlanta Sunday. The letter was dated Savannah, August 4th, but was mailed in Atlanta with the resignation last Monday. The following is an extract from Colonel Olmstead's letter to a director of the bank:

"My Dear Sir: I beg that you will pre-sent the enclosed letters of resignation to the bank and to the association and ask their immediate acceptance. I had not in-tended to take this step during Burdell's absence, but it is forced upon me by circumstances that I am unable to control. but which are entirely and absolutely out-side of either the bank's or the association's affairs. To neither of these two am I in any way indebted. I believe that there will be a small balance of withdrawal value to my stock in the association. Will you be kind enough to see that it is handed over to my family. Try to keep a little kind feeling for me in your hearts. "CHARLES H OLMSTEAD"

The following postscript is attached to "Four days salary is also due me from the bank. It is a trifling matter, but my family may need it."

Colonel Olmstead's resignation says: "Savannah, Ga., August 4.—To the Board of Directors of the Chatham Bank: I respectfully tender herewith my resignation from the presidency and directorship of the Chatham bank. I take this step for reasons which are imperative and absolute as re-gards myself, but which are entirely discon-nected with the bank. Your goodness and kindness to me I shall remember while life lasts. Respectfully,
"CHARLES H. OLMSTEAD."

Why Colonel Olmstead should have taken this step is a mystery. The affairs of both the institutions of which he was president are in perfect condition and not a paper is misplaced. The directors of both institutions will publish statements tomorrow showing that they have suffered no loss whatever, this having been determined by investigation, so that there could be no doubt whatever about it. The people of Savannah have always had the most implicit confidence in his integrity. He had charge of several fiduciary trusts, the condition of which is not known. Colonel Olmstead is president of the Confederate Veterans' Association, and it was he who had charge of the defense of Fort Pulaski in 1863. It is not known here where he has gone.

The Grounds Are Rapidly Being Transformed by the Large Force of Graders-The Exposition Plans.

The Fulton county chaingang yesterday morning started to work upon the grading of the grounds of the Cotton States and International exposition, and things at the ground will hum from this on. Fifty-eight members of the chaingang were put to work by Superintendent Tom Donelson. Besides these men twenty-five mules and carts were pressed into service. This force is working at the extreme southern end of the exposition grounds. The chainging is divided into two squads, one of which is working under Mr. S. H. Donelson, while the other is under Mr. F. M. Centell.

Both of these squads are now at work grading a new street to be called Warner, avenue. This street is outside the old fence, which is the boundary of the grounds used by the Piedmont exposition, but is within the limits of the ground controlled by the present exposition company.

Jackson street will be opened through to Warner avenue by the chaingang and this will prove one of the most popular routes to the exposition. Warner avenue, which is now being graded, runs parallel to Blakely avenue and is 380 feet north of it.

Between the new street and the old ma-chinery hall will be located the new machinery hall and the minerals and foresty building. As soon as Warner avenue is graded the chaingang will commence work upon the sites of these two buildings.

The dirt taken from the sites of these two buildings will go to form the east dam of the heautiful sheet of water to be known as "Clara Meer." This lake will cover be-tween fifteen and twenty acres of land and will be one of the most charming features of the exposition grounds This east dam will also form a driveway from the new machinery hall to the old main building of the Piedmont exposition. This building will be altered and remodeled to suit the prevailing style of architecture which will prevail in all of the buildings. The old machinery hall will be torn away and the ground now occupied by it will be covered by the lake. The north dam of this lake is now being built by the dirt removed from the site of the new main building, by Contractor Redmond. The work of grading on this part of the ground is being pushed rapidly to comple-tion by Mr. Redmond. A large part of the driveway which will form the north dam is

The railroad tracks will enter the ground at the same point as formerly, but will have two branches. One of the branches will run in a circuitous route to the main build ing, while the other will run parallel to Warner avenue between that avenue and the machinery hall and the minerals and forestry building, which two buildings will be on a line with each other. The report that the old grand stand would pe remodeled and used as the administration building is entirely erroneous as the building would not be at all suitable for that purpose. However, the grand stand will be used for some purpose, although just what has not as yet been determined. The administration building will be located directly north of the present race track and almost directly west of the main building. A fact that is not generally known is that the exposition grounds are lower than the city proper, yet such is the case. Mr. Grant Wilkins states that the elevation of the union depot is 110 feet more above the level of the sea than is the center of the plot of ground encircled by the race track. The exposition grounds will present a busy scene from this time forward, as Contractor Redmond is working a large Contractor Redmond is working a force of men at the northern extremity of the grounds, while the convicts are working at the southern extremity.

Hot weather continues unabated in most sections of the United States. West of the Mississippi river temperatures were high shississippi river temperatures were high yesterday from Texas to the Dakotas. At Huron, S. D., 98 degrees, the highest temperature in the country, was reported east of the Mississippi; temperatures, also, as a rule, were pretty high, the heat being particularly oppressive in some of the northern cities. At New York thermometers were up to 90 degrees; at Baltimore, Cincinnati and Chicago, to 94 degrees. Fair weather has prevailed during the last twenty-four hours over most states of the interior, while local rains have continued to be reported in several of the states near the south Atlantic and guif coasts. Here in north Georgia there was a welcome clearing up of the sky yesterday afternoon; will be very beneficial to the crops. In south Georgia rain was only reported at a few points yesterday. The twenty-four hour rainfall to 5 o'clock last night at Columbus was a little over half an inch; that was about the heaviest fall reported.

ATLANTA, GA., August 9, 1894

General Evans's Friends in the Campaign.

We infer from the tenor of some of Judge Hines's remarks in various parts of the state-potably at Milledgevillethat he is not depending particularly on the support that he may receive from the populists to make him governor, but hopes for the aid and support of certain "disgruntled democrats" who were anxious to secure the nomination of General Evans, and who, he says, are now opposed to Mr. Atkinson.

Such suggestions as these emphasize the fact that the silly season has opened up with the usual number of attractions. Too much sun, added to too much rain, threatens to sap the founda tions of things and bring ambitious politicians down to the level of those who believe that the population would be saner in all respects if the inmates of the madhouses-were armed with fiddles and fishing poles and set at large.

We advise Judge Hines not to place any dependence whatever in his advertised belief that any of those democrats who supported the candidacy of General Evans will now turn for consolation to the candidate of the populists. If Judge Hines is as wise as his friends say he is, he will look for support solely to that element which, on the plea that there has been unnecessary delay in putting democratic principles in operation, would now render it impossible for these principles to be carried out.

There is a good old Georgia story that we used to hear in the days before the war about a little boy who was sent to drive the cows home. Failing to find the cows, he resolved never to go home any more. The cows went home of their own accord, but the little boywell, the little boy is supposed to be the chap that carries the light for Jacko'-my-lantern. During the contest for the nomination The Constitution got acquainted with a good many Evans men first and last, and there was not then, and there is not now, a single Jack-o'-my-lantern democrat among them. The Evans men honestly and earnestly preferred General Evans to Mr. Atkinson. The Atkinson men honestly and earnestly preferred Mr. Atkinson to General Evans: but all of them, in the beginning and at the end, referred the success of the party to either candidate. Both the candidates were strong with the people, but both together could lead only a handful of voters out of the party. Does Judge Hines imagine that he will be more attractive before the multitude than either Mr. Atkinson or General Evans would have been? Does he suppose that the doctrine of disgruntlement-if we may be permitted to give a new name to an old disease-is more furlously potent now than it has been in hundreds of primary campaigns? No claim was set up that either of the candidates was superior to the party. It was certain when the contest for the nomination began that one of the candidates for the nomination would be defeated; but there was no suggestion, so far as we know, that the political firmament would collapse on that account so as to enable Judge Hines to catch larks.

The Constitution championed the cause of General Evans with a good deal of ardor, and so did thousands of other good democrats, but throughout the whole contest there was a pledge of good faith that the successful candidate would receive the ungrudging support of those who favored his opponent. This goes without saying. The man who goes into a primary, enters into a contract to support the nominee. It is a contract which his honor demands that he fulfill.

Judge Hines is just now engaged in the occupation of praising General Evans while disparaging the candidacy of Mr. Atkinson, the democratic nominee. Had General Evans been the nominee Judge Hines would have been now engaged in fighting him and would, without doubt, be hatching up disparaging things to say of the general while patting Mr. Atkinson and his friends on the back in a similar futile endeavor to stir up, within the ranks of the dem-ocratic party, dissatisfaction and strife, in the hope that it might innure to his gia state platform, which endorsed to stir up, within the ranks of the dem-own benefit. It's an old game, but it won't work in Georgia.

We cannot conceive what motive any democratic supporter of General Evans would have in deserting the party at this functure and giving his vote to Judge Hines. We cannot imagine what point would be gained by it. We might understand it if it were the purposes of party organization to merely to for ward the personal interests and ambitions of individuals; but, as a matter of fact, individuals are mere incidents of party life and history. The party lives on from generation to generation and men are remembered in connection with it in proportion to the zeal and acumen which they bring to bear in their efforts to promote its principles and carry out its pledges.

The friends of General Evans are democrats. They did not present their candidate to the people on personal grounds, but on grounds of his fitness for the governor's place. They did not contend that he was a better democrat than Mr. Atkinson, and they made no claim that would now warrant them in deserting the party. The suggestion that Judge Hines makes that the Evans democrats will support him is preposterous on the face of it. They will give their hearty support to Mr. Atkinson because he represents the party and the party represents the principles they desire to see put in operation.

If a party organization were a mere combination to lift men to office, Judge Hines might hope for some support from extreme partisans, but the democratic party is a living and a vital organization, representing the hopes, the expectations and the purposes of the people. That General Evans and all his friends will give the party and its nominees their hearty support, goes without saying. The general, true and loyal democrat that he is, has emphasized upon every occasion his willingness and desire to do everything in his power to further the success of the party and its iominees. Any friend of his who would be lead off from his loyalty to democracy by such attempts to stir up prejudices would be untrue not only to democracy but to his friendship for and his support of General Evans.

Captain James W. English.

The card from Captain James W English, printed in another column, ex hibits him in the character of an ideal citizen.

He was urged to permit the use of his name for the mayoralty under the most flattering circumstances. The appeals which came to him were from all classes, and were as earnest as they were numerous. To be mayor of Atlanta for the coming two years might well touch any man's ambition. It will cover a period making the office equal In importance to that of the governor ship.

Captain English, however, found that there would be a strong contest leading up to the election. Out of this contest enmities might grow which might seriously hamper the exposition of next year. Fully recognizing the necessity for harmony among the people, he has decided that he will not enter the race. but that he will still continue to serve Atlanta as a private citizen.

Atlanta has no better citizen than Captain English, and whatever he does, will always be proud of him

Take It Back, Mr. Ochs.

The characterization of the appoint ment of Minister Porter to succeed Judge Key as "vicious" by The Chattanooga Times, must have been a slip of the pen. The Constitution has frequently been compelled to regret that there was no democrat of sufficient ability to be made secretary of state; and when the republican, Wayne MacVeagh, was sent to Italy, it was accepted as the best that could be done in the democratic dearth of material. The democratic party had been out of power so long, there was some reason in the suggestion that its members had not been sufficiently trained for the higher offices. In the course of time, when the boys shall have become familiar with the dizzy heights of success, they will be given a chance at the red-cushioned chairs. but for the present they should step carefully around the base of the mountain. All this was a matter of concern to The Constitution, which did not forget that Mr. Gresham did write a personal letter saying that as fetween Cleveland and Harrison he preferred the former, and that the surroundings of Mr. MacVeagh were not as pleasant as when he was a member of a republican cabinet. They both performed personal service, to this extent, for Mr. Cleveland, which entitled them to recognition.

Judge Porter, according to The Nashville American, was equally, if not more, serviceable to Mr. Cleveland than either of the above named gentlemen. "During the campaign of 1892," says The American, "he took an active and leading part and did much toward inducing the democratic convention to send a. delegation to Chicago instructed for Mr. Cleveland." In the face of this record, what does it matter if Judge Porter has become rusty in the law by twenty-five years of "innocuous desuetude," and has never had a supreme court case? Why should The Chattanooga Times ineautiously say that "it smacks of favoritism" because Mr. Cleveland has rewarded the personal services of a distinguished friend? When The Times goes on to say that "90 per cent of the intelligent people of East 'Tennessee are disgusted and alienated," it seeks to localize the appointing power of the president. The accusation that the appointment "smacks of personal favoritism," and exhibits President Cleveland's "readiness to break through custom, evade law and anger a great community, to gratify such favoritism. made in hot blood, and will be recalled as soon as Editor Ochs recalls

the fact that there can be no error in

President Cleveland by "recognizing the difficulties" by which his administration is surrounded. If The Times stood upon this sample declaration of endorse nent it would not abuse the president when, in its own language, he import a man" to fill Judge Key's seat, "even at the risk of seriously bending if not breaking the law!" As to Judge Porter himself he gets the highest praise from other sources The American, which has had occasion to lament the paucity of democratic material at times, says of him: man of the highest honor and whose in-stincts are naturally repugnant to all kinds of deceit and dissimulation. dignity to the high position to which he has been appointed and will administer the law with the fairness and courage which have always marked his official career backed by a strong mind and unswerving desire to do the right, after having ar and careful deliberations. The conduct of and careful deliberations. The conduct of his court will be based upon high principles and in his administration of the duties de-volving upon him courtesy, kindness; re-spect for the rights of attorneys and liti-gants and a firm intention of arriving at justice will be always observed.

Editor Ochs, we are sure, will over come his temporary excitement in a few days, and agree with The Constitution that Mr. Cleveland's latest "surprise" is much better than some of his former ones.

"Holding the Bag."

The Atlanta Journal, which seems to regard itself as the Conscience Keeper of the administration for the state of Georgia, is wroth over the supposed discovery of a "mare's nest," to which text it speaks as follows: Few things seem to gratify The Atlanta President Cleveland from democratic quar ters. It eagerly seizes and parades every-But we regret to say that our neighbor does not always confine itself to the facts criticisms of the president. This morning it publishes a "special" from Chattanooga

"Why, Brutus. The Chattanooga Time Pulls Its Razor from Its Boot.' After quoting the Chattanooga special which appeared in The Constitution of yesterday morning, the Conscience Keeper quotes an alleged extract from The Chattanooga Times, concerning which, it says: It will be seen that there is no fustifica whatever for The Constitution's "spe and that most of its statements are purely fictitious.

Is this fair journalism?
As The Constitution regrets to see the Conscience Keeper in such a stew, we direct its attention to the leading editorial in the second column of The Chattanooga Times, of August 8, 1894, headed "The New District Judge," which reads as follows:

The Chattanooga Times has always been the friend of Judge D. M. Key, of Hon James D. Porter and of the president and

But our friendship for men, and our con fidence in them as public servants ought not and will not blind us when the rights and interests of the people are infringe by them. Judge Key has said, both before and since he reached the retiring age, that one rea-son why he should be cautious in timing his resignation was the protection of East He said he thought his successor ought to be taken from this grand division. He said to gentlemen, who told him they would apply for the place if he surrendered it, that they would be duly notified of his retiringof the fact. Now the first we hear of hange is the telegraphic announcement of the nomination of his successor. His near est friends were kept in the dark. No Eas Tennessee lawyer who aspired to the office of it until he saw it in the newspapers. Governor Porter is an admirable man, but a quarter of a century. We doubt if he ever had a case in a United States court. He never seemed to be the least in love with the law. There are surely a dozen law yers in Nashville, Chattanooga or Knox ville better fitted for the bench than the appointee, while he would unquestionably better fitted for many executive places than any one of the three dozen. Good man as he is, his qualifications for a judgeship are by no means so conspicuous as to justify his being transferred from a distan part of the state and placed over the heads of men whose qualifications will not be ques-tioned by anybody who know them and is fit to judge them. He may make an accepta ble judge; we hope and believe he will; but the revised statutes on one hand and vol untary pledges on the other, by taking him out of a high-salaried place and give him another that could not be given him without putting a slur on the bar of both East and

East Tennessee was entitled to the appointment by law, by the force of custom by right, by reason of the fact that East Tennessee has as well equipped men—democrats-for judicial duties as any other equa part of the country. Middle and West Ten-nessee already held three United States judgeships—one supreme court justice, one circuit and one district judge; and forsooth our East Tennessee bar is told, by acts that speak plainer than words, that there not a democratic lawyer among them fit district judge; that the incumbent and the president must import a man to fill that seat, even at the risk of seriously bending if not breaking, the law! Surely it were a spiritless people that failed to resent such an affront. making this appointment the president not only slaps the East Tennessee bar in the face, he violates one of his own rules, which is to the effect that even territorial judges ought always to be appointed from the bar of the territory, unless there were very powerful reasons for sending strangers to sit in those courts, and the president must have known that there was no reason for going beyond this judicial district to secure good judicial timber Taken all in all, the appointment is a great wrong, and the high records of those immediately concerned in making it, only makes the wrong greater, instead of mitigating it in any degree. degree.

Our personal preferences in the matter, our being disappointed, cuts no figure at all in the general discussion of the subject. It is not our personal preference who alone has been slurred and tricked; it is the en has been slurred and tricked; it is the en-tire bar of the grand division, and at least 90 per cent of all the intelligent people of East Tennessee, who are disgusted and alienated. The principle—if it may be thus dignified—on which the appointment runs, is vicious, for it smacks of personal favor-itism and a readiness to break through custom, evade law and speer a great comp custom, evade law and anger a great community to gratify such favoritism.

This is plain language. It is used be no other would answer the demands of the case. We have no right to condone by silence a virtual and gratuitous fling at a large body of learned and honorable lawyers, who are our neighbors; no right to pass by in silence when both law and cuspass by in silence when both to evade a tom are disregarded; no right to evade a tom are disregarded; no right to evade a manly defense of the rights and dignity of our immediate neighbors, friends and fellow citizens. Had opportunity been afforded we should have most energetically protested against the appointment; we can do no less, in honor and in deference to our respect for our people, and our self-respect, than to say what we have said.

The appointment will seriously weaken administration in this quarter of the th, and it ought to have that effect, a another editorial paragraph, at the bottom of the same column, The Times

It has usually be avoided, but to go far away from a distr to find an appointee for that district who has been out of practice for a quarter of a century, and is within four years of the age when congress, in its wisdom, thought judges ought to retire, is certainly a striking performance. The president must have been "queered."

From the above it will be seen that the editor of The Journal must have been as badly "queered" as his apostle when he faked an editorial expression from The Chattanooga Times of Augus 8th which did not appear in it.

"Is this fair journalism?"

A Strong Association.

The members of the Georgia Weekly Press Association were with us yesterday and are now being whirled toward Washington and New York on one of the magnificent trains of the Scaboard Air-Line. They were given hearty wel come to Atlanta and everybody joins un wishing them the pleasantest possible journey.

The organization is a strong one. Th association includes in its membership many of the brightest men in Georgia and when they get together on their annual jaunt a lively time is assured.

The association has been peculiarly happy in its selection of officers. The retiring president, Mr. Sim T. Blalock, of The Favetteville News, is one of the ablest members of the association, and in selecting Mr. Walter T. Coleman, editor of The Cedartown Standard, as his successor, the association has certainly made a wise choice. Mr. Cole man, who is at the head of one of the best weekly papers in Georgia, is one of the most enterprising and most in telligent newspaper men of Georgia. He is a man who is doing much through the columns of his paper and by his personal influence toward the material development of the splendid section of the state in which he lives and, ever since this association was formed, he has been an active contributor to its success. The other officers chosen in dicate the high character of the membership of the association, and the members certainly have good cause for self congratulation.

Here's a pleasant trip and a safe re turn!

In the general contraction of values it i no wonder that the Hon. Carl Schurz ha disappeared up a tree.

It is to be hoped that the dissatisfaction of The Chattanooga Times with Mr. Cleveland will not drive it to favor the free coin age of silver. We don't want that caus crippled.

What democratic pledge is carried ou by voting against democratic candidates o by deserting the democratic party? If the people of Georgia really believe in democratic principles, how can they hope to promote them by destroying democratic organization?

A correspondent wants to know if genuine statesmen chew tobacco. We are afraid not. Sugar and tobacco do not go well together.

We believe the term "parity" will be the death of some of the little goldbug editors. Now that they have got hold of it they don't know whether to tuck it under the bed of bury it in the garden. They are afraid some of the free coinage democrats will run off with it.

Georgia is very much on top in Washington these days. When things get into a muddle, Georgia is called on to furnish the man who can straighten them out, and she s always able to produce the article. With Speaker Crisp at the helm, there is little langer of congress being permitted to wan der off from its principles. His masterly handling of the democratic house caucu demonstrates not only his own great ability out the implicit confidence which the members of his party place in him. He is the man of the hour.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Most Americans who travel in Europe be come indignant when they see women working as farm hands. But Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, of Philadelphia, now in Ger many, says: "Such farm work for women is neither degrading nor too taxing. have pledged to become helpmates to their husbands, and they regard it their duty to lessen the labors of their fathers, and, being physically able to do their share, they re gard it wrong to permit the stronger sex t slave themselves to death while they are dling their time away at home. Jufrom their happy and healthy looks, they seem to be none the worse for taking their places alongside the men folk for the purpose of honestly earning their bread. Had we a little practical good sense and less sen timentality among our women at home many a woman's life might be happier to day, happier for being more useful, and many a man's life would be spared the ne essity of slaving itself to death to indulg urles."

An old friend of his said to me today: 'In his earlier life the judge was said to be very profane. When angry he was an orotund swearer, and had few equals. In all my intercourse with him, however, extending over practically our Chillicothe, I never heard him utter an oath. His uncle, old Governor Bill Allen, with whom he read law, was a very profane man, and I suppose young "caught onto" the habit from him."

The Albany Herald comments as follows on the defeat of Mr. Cabaniss:
"The failure of the people of his district to give him the customary endorsement is attributable alone to his vote on the silver question and the manner in which he con mitted himself to the Cleveland financial policy in the beginning of the extra session of congress. It has been customary with the democratic party of this state to reward all faithful representatives in con-gress with a second term, and the turning down of Mr. Cabaniss by his own party at the close of his first term is, if we are not mistaken, unprecendented in this state. But he went against a plain declaration of his party platform and now his party will try another man." The Griffin Call has this to say of Mr Cabaniss:

"Inasmuch as Colonel Cabaniss has been so overwhelmingly defeated for congress this district, which his many friends deeply regret, the Call would suggest to the good people of Forsyth that they elect him mayor of that city as a mark of dis-tinction and appreciation. He is a good man and would make the booming city of Forsyth a model mayor. Besides his friends throughout the state would appreciate this recognition of his merits. The Columbus Enquirer-Sun, in a leading editorial, has this to say to the colored voters of Georgia:

"The colored people of Georgia have an important question to decide for themselves in this fight. They have much at stake—in in this fight. They have much at stake—in good government, in law and order, and in the education of their children. Under the democratic government the colored people have prospered; they have been protected in all their rights, and the colored school system has made the most marked advancement. It will so continue under a democratic administration of the state government, and the colored people do not now need any promises or arguments to convince them that the present satisfactory condition will go on with still better results under the democratic policy of the state government, and the colored people do not now need any promises or arguments to convince them that the present satisfactory condition will go on with still better results under the democratic policy of the state governthe democratic policy of the state government. The LaGronge Graphic has this to say of recent results in the tenth district:
"We are glad to see the democrats of the tenth have taken their place in the glorious procession of the unterrified, in which old Troup herself is marching. And they are marching to victory, too. Up from the corn fields of Alabama, from the cotton fields of Georgia, from the fertile plains of the Mississippi thay come, a great army over whom floats the proud banner of free silver. The ways may be dark through which they must pass, the journey may be over rough

SOME SOUTHERN STURIES.

John Franklin, the twelve-year-old son of F. M. Johnson, of Estero island, Florida, met with a terrible experience with a shark recently, by which he may lose one of his ands. He was trolling for boat with a younger brother in Carlos pass, when the hook struck the back fin of foot shark. This caused the fish to roll in to the boat, when the boy reached down his hand to shove the fish away. his hand went down near the water the shark seized it and bit it almost entire; off, and sinking its teeth in the hand itself The boy was dragged out of the boat until his head was almost submerged, but he managed to drag himself back into the b with the aid of his younger brother. At a negro revival at New Smyrra, Fla., one of the men got his cup of happiness filled to overflowing and became unconscious. He was apparently in a trance, and all efforts to arouse him proved unsuccessful. He was laid away in the rear of the church, where he remained in a lethargic state for about tweaty-four hours, the two not seeming to disturb him. He was aroused by the services on Monday night, and awoke shouting and singing.

LaGrange Graphic: Many democrats have feared that the party at the late convention might be induced to use ambiguous and uncertain planks in the platform, and in an attempt to please all, would, in fact, cre-ate an impression of insincerity on the masses. As we believed it would, wisdom ruled the day, and the platform adopted is clear cut, straight to the point, honest, and fearless in its enunciation of principles Only the wilfully blind can doubt of its of the party can "go forth conquering and to conquer." With a doubtful and uncer-tain statement of principles our representatives would have been at once put upon the detensive. Now, feeling themselves on a secure foundation and led by such a leader as W. Y. Atkinson, we confidently look for another 70,000 majority.

Where Harm Is Being Done. Editor Constitution-Is it not probable that without intending it the southern newspapers are aiding the speculators in depressing the price of cotton? I see in all the papers the most glowing and, it seems to us poor farmers, the most unnecessary exaggerations of the fine cotton crops These accounts do not relate to any particular part of the cotton region, but describe the crops as unprecedentedly fine in all portions of the south. One telegram, apparently emanating from Dallas, was in all the papers stating some weeks ago that cotton picking was to begin on the "following Monday throughout the great state of Texas" and that the crop excelled anything ever before raised in that section when we know that a large part of the best cotton growing territory of Texas has hardly any open cotton until August. In Georgla we know the crop is far from good and I have heard from reliable sources that large portions of Texas and other states have worse crops than ours. I have just of the methods of the cotton gamblers and it seems that they are the greatest enemies of the farmer. Of course we are familiar with the vast sums of money our people lose every year "bulling" the market and the frauds and embezziements of officials and trusted agents produced by it, but one feature of it escapes our observation, and that is the fact that the farmer, by making the product which is dealt with, becomes an innocent participant in the gambling and without in the least deserving it bears a heavy loss. The whole testimony of the witnesses showed that prices are depreciated by the efforts of this most infamous of ail modes of gambling.

As is well known by those who are at all interested in the city political situation there have been several con-ferences and conversations among the and representative men the city during the last two weeks looking to the formation of a ticket for mayor, aldermen and councilmen.

At a recent meeting of quite a number of those interested, at which Hoh, W. H. Hulsey presided, a resolution was adopted calling upon one hundred of the most repsentative citizens to meet at the coun-l chamber on Wednesday evening to consider the matter. The same resolution stipulated the names of those who were asked to be present, the representation being fifteen from each ward, except the seventh, which was allowed ten. It was in response to that call that the gentlemen assembled at the city hall last night to consider the situation and to take such action as they thought best for the good of the city.

But here is the paper on which the call for the meeting was based: At a meeting held August 6th instant, consisting of fifty representative citizens, the following resolutions were offered and citizens to be selected from the various wards, viz., fifteen each from wards one to six and ten from the seventh ward, and that said committee of 100 be requested to suggest suitable names for aldermen and councilmen for the city of Atlanta to be voted for at the ensuing election, and also to attend to such other business as may be brought before the meeting. "Resolved further, That the secretary of this meeting be requested to notify the various members of the said committee of 100 to meet in the council chamber next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

"Resolved also, That it is the sense of this meeting that the salaries of aldermen nen be reduced to the sum of 20) a year, and that the committee of 100 be requested to impress this upon such can-didates as they may name and urge them to support said reduction of salary.

CAPTAIN ENGLISH WILL NOT RUN. He Writes a Letter Declining to Enter the Mayoralty Race. Captain English will not be in the race for mayor. For more than ten days his friends and admirers throughout the city have been importuning him to make the race for the position and he has been giving the petitions the most careful consideration.

Yesterday he answered the letters addressed to him and in his answer declines to allow the use of his name. The letter is just such a production as those who are conversant with Captain English and his character would expect. In the letter the captain says: "Atlanta, Ga., August 8, 1894.-Messrs. Stewart Woodson, S. M. Inman, E. P. Howell, H. H. Cabaniss, C. A. Collier, Louis Gholstin and Others-Gentlemen Your petition requesting me to allow the use of my name as a candidate for mayor of the city of Atlanta at the approaching election has been duly and carefully considered.

"It is needless for me to emphasize my high appreciation of the compliment paid me in being considered worthy to occupy this honorable position, to fill this extremely important office by such petitioners, in such a crisis as now confronts us, and it is a source of the highest gratification to me and an honor that will be treasured through life. I have been honored in the past by the people of this city. I have made a record on which I may be permitted to say, with pardonable pride, I am willing to pass into her history, and at no time have I ever faltered in her support. My political ambition has been fully satisfied. I do not seek the office of mayor or any other in the glory of the city in which I live.

"In these times of general depression, and when all good citizens are united in support of our exposition, it seems to me that nothing should be done to bring about dissen-sion or discord among them, but, on the contrary, that the highest duty of a public-spirited man is to promote harmony and unity among all classes of our people.

"As stated to you and through the press, while I am willing and ready to make all personal sacrifices to the proper discharges of the duties of the office of mayor, if called upon to perform those duties, I am unwilling to enter upon a contest for the office, which may involve a heated campaign and must unavoidably distract the office, which may involve a heated campaign and must unavoidably distract the attention of our people from the great enterprise they now have in hand, and on which, I believe, Atlanta has staked her future prosperity. I cannot afford to take any chances of creating discord when harmony is so essential. It must be manifest to all that the position assumed by an honorable aspirant for the office of mayor in refusing to submit his claims to a committee of friends equally and fairly selected means just such a conflict if I should agree to allow the use of my name. I, therefore, feel it to be my duty to the public-spirited people of Atlanta to decline to enter the race, although I know the support of such petitioners and the many patriotic and public-spirited citizens that have voluntarily offered me their support, assures the success of men and measures when their cause is espoused by them.

"In the proper discharge of the responsible duties devolving upon the chairman of the executive committee of the Cotton States and International exposition and the other public positions with which I am officially connected, I feel that my time and labor can be employed with profit to our city.

"Thanking you and each of the signers of city.

"Thanking you and each of the signers of the petition, and through you the many good citizens who have called on me in person and tendered me their services and support if I would consent to enter this contest, and with the assurance of my regard and esteem for all, I am very truly yours.

J. W. ENGLISH."

A GREAT FUTURE.

of the Southern.

That Is If the Present Plans of Its Pro-motors Are Carried Out-What Is Said to Be Their Design.

The Southern railroad is to be one of the nost gigantic railroad systems in the world, if current stories are true.

The eyes of all the world are upon the officials of that road, and no deal that they night consummate would surprise the pub-

The breadth of the undertaking when the Southern was made out of a dozen lines of road amazed the railroad world as nothing had done in a decade, but what is to come is perhaps of greater magnitude than what has been done already.

The latest in railroad circles is that about two thousand miles of railway are yet to be added to the 4,333 miles already in the system. The public counts on the Central being included in the Southern, although Mr. Comer, the receiver, says that it will be independent. The Central's mileage, at the time it was placed in a receivership, was about 2,500.

The most imporant rumor now current is that the Queen and Crescent, with its 1,191 miles of road, long identified with the East Tennessee, is to be taken into the fold of the Southern. With it will come the Alabama Great Southern. It can be stated on pretty good authority that these lines will become part of the consolidation.

But not half has yet been told. The New Orleans and Northeastern, with 196 miles of road; the Alabama and Vicksburg with 140 miles, and the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific with 176, are said to be slated for the Southern.

The Alabama Great Southern is said to be sure to fall into the hands of the Southern under the foreclosure sale of Augus

Such are the stories that are going about among the railroad men, and they are not without a basis in truth. The brainy, effective railroad men do not advertise their movements until they consummate what they have in hand, but it frequently happens that despite their vigilance, their plans leak out.

The men at the head of the Southern are ambitious to make it a great system of railway lines, a system which will control the traffic arrangements of the south and it is not believed that they will stop until they have acquired enough mileage so located as to accomplish this purpose. The scheme is a great one, and has behind it men competent to push it to success. Time will develop the nature of the plan of the promoters of the Southern. It is stated that along the line of the contemplated acquisition of the Cincinnati Southern, President Samuel Felton has been offered the position of first vice president of the Southern. It is a signficant fact that this position has not yet been filled. The rumor that Sol Haas would get it is without foundation, it seems.

The public may confidently await interesting developments concerning the further development of the Southern. Mr. Hudson in Washington.

Some vital changes may be expected in the operating department of the Western division of the Southern after September 1st, as has been stated in The Consti-

General Manager Hudson, of the western system is now in Washington in consultation with Mr. W. H. Baldwin about the proposed changes. As is well known, Mr. Baldwin is one of the most important individuals gift of the people, yet I am at all times ready to make any personal sacrifice of time, labor or money, which may be required of me for the well-being, honor and entire system. He is a young man and active, and his head is full of progressive

It is expected that he and General Manager Hudson will agree upon some good plan for the operation of the lines of the western system. None of the present men will be dropped. Superintendent Beauprie will, in all probability, remain in Atlanta with a change of territory. When the Georgia Pacific road is added to the Southern General Manager Hudson will have five hundred miles of territory more than he has ever had before. If the Memphis and Charleston is bought in by the Southern when it is put up for sale, it will also be added to General Manager Hudson's territory in the western system. No department is better looked after than is the operating department of the Southern. Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Hudson are two of the best of their kind in the country and will keep the standard up to

Commissioner E. B. Stahlman is in Chicago. It is given out at his office that he is absent on business connected with the Southern Traffic Association. There was a rumor current yesterday to the effect that the purpose of his visit was to bring the Illinois Central road into the fold of the Southern Railway and Steamship Associa-

If this is true, and Mr. Stahlman succeeds in making this move, it will be one of the most important events in southern railroad circles in a long while. There was no confirmation of the rumor yesterday.

Mr. Sam Hardwick, the most active of all the railroad men, left yesterday afternoon for a three days' trip to New Orleans.

Mr. Joe White, the well-known passenger agent of the Georgia railroad, was in the city yesterday installing Mr. J. W. Kirkland as passenger agent of the old reliable Georgia at this point. Mr. Kirkland will have his office at the Georgia railroad depot at the head of Alabama street, where he will look out for the interest of his road in the passenger line. Of course this does not conflict with the duties or authority of Mr. White, who, though not ag old, is just as reliable as the standard road he represents. The increasing business of the company demands the location of an active passenger agent at this point and Mr. Kirkland is an excellent man for the place.

Important Stories Concerning the Plans | Alabama's Governor-Elect Was in Atlanta Yesterday.

THE BIGGEST SYSTEM IN THE WORLD HE TALKS ABOUT THE ELECTION

He Secured a Larger Majority Than He Had Roped For-Favors the Repeal of the State Bank Tax.

A man above the ordinary in height and weight, with eyes that indicated a marvelous strength of will and fine determination of purpose, gray mustached, gray-haired, and dressed in a style that was entirely negligee, stood in the lobby of the Kimbali house yesterday evening talking to several gentlemen, gesticulating gently with the

COLONEL WILLIAM C. OATES. nost strenuous opposition of the Kolb party, which had but two years ago advanced within 11,000 votes of defeating one of the strongest politicians that ever made the race bearing democracy's banner. But Governor-elect Oates, of Alabama, it was, on his way to Washington to resume his congressional duties, fresh from the victory of a 25,000 majority over his opponent, R. F. Kolb. He arrived here yesterday at 6:30 o'clock in the evening and left a couple of hours later. He appears very much fatigued over the recent hard work he has been obliged to go through, and retired to his berth at 8 o'clock, after meeting a number of friends who had learned of his presence in the city. Colonel Oates speaks freely of his campaign against Kolb, and regards the election of himself as one of the best victories that democracy has ever achieved. "What I am proudest of," said Colonel Oates in the course of a conversation, "is my vote in Henry and Pike counties. I was born in Henry county and was raised in Pike, you know. In 1892 Henry county gave to Kolb, who was then running against Jones, a majority of 1,518. I see in this morning's Constitution that I am given a majority of 500 over Kolb. If Kolb had received 28 votes more in Pike county in 1892 he would have had a majority of a few votes. This time my majority was 275. "The people are tired of Kolbism, and that is very plainly shown. He made his fight entirely along the line that all the hard times that the people were experiencing were occasioned by the acts of the democrats or their failure to act. He could use this argument with greater force than he could two years ago, and he did not fall to push it for all he was able. Yet take up the result as shown by The Constitution Two years ago in Tallapoosa county Kolb secured a majority of 2,449-now look at this-and this time it was cut down to 597. Then there's Limestone county. Two years syo his majority over Jones was 1,623, and this year it was 153. Then there's Franklin county, which gave Kolb 446 majority last year, and now turns completely over with a majority for democracy to the extent of 310. In Crenshaw county Kolb's majority was cut down from 775 to 16, and Clay county this year gave him only 24 major-ity, as against 222 two years ago. His majority in Cherokee was cut in half, and in Chambers county to the same extent. I could mention other counties, but these serve to show what I would illustrate. I feel it, truthfully and confidently, that Kolbism is dead in Alabama."

Colonel Oates's Pre-Election Opinions "When I went into the race for the governorship the only thing I feared was a defeat by Johnston for the nomination and after the first month that left me as for Kolb, I guaranteed to beat him if nominated to make the race for the democracy. But Johnston had the start on me. As commissioner of agriculture he had a hold upon the people which I found difficult to overcome. Then he was splen-dic'ly organized all over the state.

"During the first month, as I said, the result was doubtful. I went back to Washington and just about that time the presi-dent vetoed the seignorage bill. This put another load or my shoulders to be carried, and by the president's action I lost three counties. But I found that I would easily carry the state if all appearances were not deceitful—and they were not. In the race against Kolb I have always expected to defeat him by a vote from 15,000 to 20,-000, though not more than the last named figure. But according to The Constitution I have more than 25,000. For this I am profoundly grateful."

CORN ERRATIC.

At One Time Yesterday September Was 8 1-2 Below the Day Before.

WHEAT 18-8 TO 11-2 BELOW TUESDAY

The Grangers Most Prominent in an Advance in the Stock Market-Cotton Slightly Higher.

CHICAGO, August 5.—Armour was the big seller of wheat at the opening today. Buyers of yesterday were also inclined to assist the price downward by disposing of such wheat as showed a profit. As the advance was solely due to the strength in corn, so, therefore, was the drop today a natural consequence of the slump in the condition of that market. The extraordinary conditions prevailing in the trade sets at naught the regular influences, operators paying no attention to them and making no effort to obtain information bearing directly upon the wheat situation. Cables paying no attention to them and making no effort to obtain information bearing directly upon the wheat situation. Cables today were all higher. September wheat opened from 67½c to 55%c, sold at 55½c, declined to 55%c, closing at 55½@56c—1%c@1½c under yesterday. Cash wheat was steady, prices showing but little change. Corn was quite as nervous as yesterday, but there was a reversal of the tone and a change in the course of prices. The opening was first as panicky as any period of yesterday's session, and it looked for a moment as if the top was yet to come. The country, however, was satisfied with its profits, and large blocks were offered for sale on orders from the very districts that have been complaining of the drought. There was no legical reason, beyond a desire to obtain profits in this action, but it was nevertheless a fact that despite unchanged weather conditions, and in the face of a bad state report from Iowa and predictions of continued dry weather, and predictions of continued dry weather, there was a well-defined disposition to sell freely. The tailers, too, were selling. Those people who have been following the big holder of cash corn felt that the sensa-tional bulge yesterday was not likely to hold, hence they discreetly secured their rains. The professionals, however, were not wrong again, and the wild fluctuations gave evidence of the uncertainty that prevailed. The range was 8½c on September corn and 6c on May, and the close was at a recovery, the former showing a net de-cine of 3½c, and the latter 2½c. September corn opened from 61½ to 59c, sold down to 65c, closing at 55%; May sold between 57c and 51c and closed at 52%c. Cash corn was in good demand, prices being very irregular, but generally 1/2c under September for

Provisions—Had it not been for the break in corn, a different result might have been seen in this product at the end of the day's trading. The opening was strong, and that feeling ruled for a long time. The general weakness soon pervaded the pit, and prices fell away. The close was 7½c lower for September pork, 2½c lower for September lard and 5c lower for September ribs. Very little was done in the cash

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. CHICAGO, August 8.-This was another very exciting day in all markets. September wheat ranged from 581/4c to 55%c. Cables were firm and higher all round. The opening was strong with good buying. Trade was unusually heavy. On the big breaks of 5 to 6 cents in corn started realing, and the market There was a flood of wheat for sale, and prices rapidly declined 2½ to 3 cents. The break was not entirely unexpected, as this market has advanced 5 to 6 cents within the past week without any change in the situation to warrant it other than yesterday. Clearances at all ports of wheat and flour were 368,000 bushels. Total pri-mary arrivals were somewhat lighter-854,-000 bushels. Towards the latter part of the recovering part of its decline, closing steady, Corn-May opened with regular trading 55 to 55½, firmed up to 55½, with an occasional sale at 56c. There were a few regular outside transactions for instance, a broker for a large house paid 57c for one lot of 5.000 bushels, while other brokers for the same house could not execute or ders at 55%c. It became evident from the start that many of the largest holders were heavy sellers. The few buyers were soon supplied, and a rapid decline set in, which was bordering on a panic. Some stop or-ders could not be executed all the way from 1/2c to 11/2c from the limit, making it very unfortunate for both customers and commission houses. There was a sharp reaction on unfavorable weather predic-tions from Washington. There was another decline on selling orders, though the market firmed up towards the close, recovering about half the early decline.

The Grain Market.

Trom The New York Stockholder.

In Monday's grain speculation corn, as for some time past, was the overshadowing feature. There was a repetition of the contest between country buyers and Chicago sellers and with the usual result, the speculators in the corn pit being badly worsted. September sold at 53% and retained most of its gain. The market was strong, active and excited. All the influences were buillish. In the first place the weather over Sunday was generally dry. The drought was not broken. There were showers in localities. That was all. The government weather map yesterday morning reflected dry, cool conditions in the corn belt for the preceding twenty-four hours. It did not indicate rain. The Washington weather bureau predicted dry weather in the corn belt for theirty-six hours beginning Monday morning. This was the bullish incentive in the market at the outset. It was hardly less important and certainly not half so effective as the influx of country buying orders. These again were upon an enormove scale. The country seemed to be convinced that a large shortage in the corn crop was inevitable. It bought furiously, sending September up 3% to 53% cents. As before, speculators in the Chicago corn pit were the chief sellers. The rush of country buying orders, however, soon precipitated a bear stamped. THE NEW YORK MARKET.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

NEW YORK, August 8.—There was a feeling of uncertainty in the stock market at the start, some of the prominent issues having advanced while others showed a declining tendency. Later the Grangers were heavy, and especially for Burlington and Quincy, which sold down to 70 on the corn crop damage reports. It was rumored that the government crop report, due on Friday, will show that the condition of the cereal (corn) will average only 68 per cent, the lowest on record. In sympathy, Rock Island ran off to 63%, St. Paul 694 and Northwestern to 163%. This attempt to force the bears to unload considerable long stock proving unavailing, some smaller shorts changed front and attempted to cover. This movement met with poor success, and the traders of bullish proclivities jumped in and bid up prices ish proclivities jumped in and bid up prices all around. As the day advanced, hints were received from Washington that the tariff fight was at last reaching an end Deta'ls were lacking as to the compromise, but these were not needed. It was enough for the bulls on stocks to know that some for the bulls on stocks to know that some agreement had been arrived at. With the tariff out of the way, they argued, speculation in stocks would take on new life, and, accordingly, they extended their lines. A break in corn on stop-loss orders and the marketing of long stuff assisted the bulls in the stock market. The improvement in stocks ranged from ½ to 2 per cent, and was most pronounced in the Grangers Louisville and Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Western Union, New York Central, Richmond Terminal and Lake Shore. Financial Gossip

From The New York Stockholder. As the tariff problem approaches solution, it becomes clear that adjustment of other difficulties bearing on the financial situation will be in order. The most important of these is the condition of the treasury. That is a point of weakness which, in the condition of employed the state of t opinion of eminent bankers, should be looked to at once before present uneasiness takes the form of future alarm.

For it is useless to deny the fact that For it is useless to deny the fact that the business world and our creditors in Europe experience growing dissatisfaction at the depletion of the treasury reserve and the apathy of the government. That reserve is now drawn down very close to reserve is now drawn down very close to $50,000,000 and there is still a demand for gold, another half million dollars being promptly withdrawn yesterday for export today, despite a weaker tone to exchange. According to the last bank statement New York banks hold $90,547,000 in specie. How much of this is gold is perhaps not ascertainable, but allowing that it all is, it will be seen that together with the national reserve of $52,000,000 the visible supply of gold in New York and Washington is $142,547,000. Certainly this division of the supply between the treasury and the banks does not satisfy the demand of conndence. The government holds too little; the banks too much. It may be assumed that the gold exports are over, that Europe is through selling securities. But with crops there large, wheat here under 60 cents a bushel without foreign inquiry, cotton veering towards 6 cents a pound and an influx of foreign made goods not impossible when duties are lowered, it is not safe to speculate too sanguinely on

The following earnings were reported yes The following earnings were reported yesterday: The fourth week in July, Louisville and Nashville decreased $1,749; Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, $5,455; Texas Pacific, $3,551; Mexican Central increased $9,709; Lake Erle and Western $3,344; Georgia Pacific, $8,595. Minneapolis and St. Louis reported for June a decrease in gross of $40,845 and a decrease in net of $16,679. Philadelphia and Erle net in June decreased $147,000, and Southern Pacific decreased in gross $143,386 and in net $43,862.

Closing Stock Review.

Foreign and Domestic News Co., by private wire to J. C. Knox, manager.—There was a regular bear panic in the Grangers in the closing hour, and considerable lines of shorts were covered at the top prices of the day.

The pools in Louisville and Nashville, St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and Chicago Gas also took advantage of the better feeling to bid up the price of their specialties.

Washington reports that Whisky is settled at $1 and five years, with the privilege of keeping in bond eight years on payment of 5 cents pe rgallon per year.

One of the principal reasons for the more confident tone was the belief that the tariff question will be settled one way or the other within the next twenty-four hours. In the event of a disagreement and the In the event of a disagreement and the consequent failure of tariff legislation it was generally thought that a separate bill for free sugar would be rushed through both houses and thus obliterate that feature of the McKinley bill. That was one of the explanations offered today for the persist-ent selling of Sugar certificates by representative houses.

A prominent bear operator covered a large line of Rock Island and St. Paul through a leading Broadway commission

The Whisky trust was feverish and did not respond to the rally in the general list. It is feared that the trust will have to be satisfied with the house bill of a dollar tax

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

NEW YORK, August 8.—Summary of Hubbard, Price & Co.'s cotton letter: Liverpool surprised the trade this morning by declining only 1-64d when a greater recession had been looked for. During the day that market improved 2-64d and spot sales amounted to 15,000 bales. The effect of this better feeling in our market was an opening advance of 4 to 5 points, with a good demand. There is a growing conviction that a critical period for the crop is being entered upon at very low prices and the bears are extremely cautious. The bearish features at present are the improvement in the weather conditions in the south, and the fact that the low price of the staple has not generally attracted the attention of investors. Despite these, however, the market shows unlooked for strength. During the afternoon the market continued dull but steady, with the good undertone maintained, and with no special effort to depress prices. Reports of a speedy agreement on the tariff issues had a hopeful tendency, and after the session outside prices were bid.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Hetter.

NEW YORK, August 8.—(Special.)—Liverpool reopened this morning after the holidays and sent rather better advices than were expected. Our opening was at an advance of about 5 points, the first sales of October being at 4.71. The market throughout the day was feverish, but with a good unsertore. There was much covering by shorts, and October advanced to 6.73. During the afternoon there were spells of pronounced weakness and October reacted to 6.71, but in the last fifteen minutes a more confident feeling prevalled in consequence of advices from Washington that an agreement had been reached by the tariff conferees and there was more disposition to buy. The close was steady with 6.73 bld for October. If the new tarm should become a law this week, as today's Washington telegrams would indicate, the cotton market may be higher, but whether any advice can be more than temporary will not depend upon tariff legislation, but upon the crop.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

NEW YORK, August 8.—The Sun's cotton report says: Activity in Laverpoot, some advance there, reports of too much rain in some parts of the cotton belt, notably in the Carolinas, rust and shedding in Alabama and Mississippi, continued to the firmness of the New York market. In the main the crop looks well in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, but private reports from other parts of the cotton belt art not altogether favorable. Private advices from Liverpool were more, encouraging. The speculation here was still light, being confined for the most part to board room operators.

The Dry Goods Market. The Dry Goods Market.

From The Wall Street Journal.

A fall aggregate of sales will be reached today through mail orders. The advance in the prices of bleached cottons has arrested the demand for those goods, but distant buyers acknowledge the necessity of taking up stocks early. Merchants feel assured that the larger markets will begin to operate this week, and that trade for the near future is brighter than it has been.

The southern trade has concluded its engagements, and only auplicate orders are counted upon.

Prices in certain lines are likely to be advanced and a decided improvement in the advanced and a decided improvement in the temper of the market is expected.

Collections continue the most favorable feature of the situation.

There were fewer failures last week and extensions of time were of no moment. Dry goods paper holds steady at 3 per cent, with very little offered, and two or three good single names secured money at 2% per cent.

Badged and ticketed, grip in hand and trunk in the baggage car, a full regiment of editors who get out the country papers in Georgia rode away to the east yesterday. It was a good-humored, happy party, each member in it a typical Georgia editor. There were representatives from the rugged hills of north Georgia, from the red hills of middle Georgia and from the bare, sandy lands of the wire grass section. All intent upon a pleasure journey, they made a party that was pleasant to see.

LONG BUSINESS SESSION YESTERDAY

Leit for Washington Just at Noon Yester-day-Programme of the Trip-What Will Be Done in New York.

The party left the city at exactly noon over the Seaboard Air-Line. They occupied three elegant sleepers, and the interiors of these cars were packed with bundles and baggage of every description. The ed-Iters quite filled the three cars set apart for

The editors were out of bed bright and early yesterday morning. Almost before the Kimball's fat chef had finished his slumbers the editors were making the corridors of the hotel ring with their jolly laughter. The Georgia editor is an early riser, and when he is going off on a big excursion he gets up earlier than usual.

After a hearty breakfast the editors assembled in rooms 104 and 106 for their business session. President Sim Blalock being busily occupied with the details of the trip to New York, and the newly elected president, Mr. Walter Coleman, having just left the city, Vice President McCutcheon presided over the meeting. Nearly all the editors were present, about fifteen ladies being in the gathering. Several new arrivals

The reports of the treasurer and of the corresponding secretary were received. The report of the treasurer would not indicate that the weekly editor is as poor of purse as he is proverbially reputed to be. A good showing was made of the financial standing of the association.

Secretary Herrington said that he had had some trouble in getting passes at first, as the actions of his predecessor in office had been such as to make the roads suspicious, but that had been overcome and everything was in good shape.
Editor Allen, of The Tifton Gazette,

chairman of the committee on credentials, lowing papers for membership: Decatur Record, Reynolds Hustler, Columbus Gazette, Barnesville Home Journal, Columbus Ledger, Ashburn Advance, Arabla Express, Blackshear Times, Hinesville Herald, Clay County Democrat, Tatnall County Journal, Hale's Weekly, Conyers; Tennille Chronicle, Bluftion News, Cuthbert Leader, Blakely Observer, Vidalia Star, Gordon Weekly, Calhoun; Cartersville Signal, Greenesboro Home Journal, Gordon Citizen, Barnesville Gazette and Middle Georgia Farmer. A representative of each of these papers was present and was admitted to the convention. The admission of these papers, most of which are new, shows the great growth of the association. Quite a lively discussion was precipitated by a resolution providing that only bona ide newspaper people be allowed represennuc newspaper people be allowed representation in the convention and on the association's excursion, the idea being to shut out proxies and those who were sent along by editors who could not themselves make the trip. The sentiment of the convention was that hereafter all such be excluded. Several hearty speeches were made on this line. One editor stated that it was necessary that the association retain its caste and that it asked nothing except for genuine, working newspaper men. This senti-ment was strong in the convention and will result hereafter in excursions composed en-and the penalty for the violation of its provisions is the expulsion of the offending paper from the association.

In this connection it cropped out incidentally that it has been the custom of the editors who could be the custom of the editors who could not go to the conventions and on the excursions to let some friend take the privilege belonging to him. In tirely of editors and their families without a single outsider. The resolution was passed the future there will be none of this.

W. Trox Bankston, of The Ringgold New South, wanted Hon. W. Y. Atkinson to address the convention. He said that the nominee of the democracy for governor was at that time in the hotel and he thought it emissible. thought it eminently proper that he be heard from by the editors. His motion that Mr. Atkinson be sent for by a committee went through with a chorus of hearty ayes. Mr. Bankston was made chairman of the committee, and he remediately vanished in search of the the convention proceeded with its business.

Nearly an hour had slipped away when Editor Bankston came in, evidently very warm. He had been making a hard hunt for the Coweta statesman, but in his short, search had discovered that it is not as easy to find a man in Atlanta as it is in Ringto find a man in Atlanta as it is in Ring-gold. He seemed not a little put out at his failure, as he had set his heart upon hear-ing from Mr. Atkinson. His regret was shared by the other editors in the conven-snared by the other editors in the convention.

Acting President McCutcheon said that he had been requested by Miss Ellen Dortch to make a request of the convention, which duty it gave him pleasure to perform. Miss Dortch had received a letter from Mrs. Loule M. Gordon, appointing her one of the woman directors for the Cotton States and International exposition for the state at large and she desired that the weekly editors heartily endorse the woman's department of the exposition and pledge themselves to help it in any way, by personal support or by publications in their papers. The request of Miss Dortch was heartily acceded to by the convention.

The question of where the next convention should be held aroused some spirited discussion, but was deferred until a later date.

Both Waycross and Dawson were put in nomination. The desire of the editors seemed to be to get near the seashore. Dawson contended for the meeting on the ground that the editors had never met in that section. As it appeared that there was great division of sentiment as to the proper place for holding the convention, it was decided to defer it until a few days later. It will be decided at a session of the editors held while away. THE EDITORS DEPART while away.

Just before the meeting adjourned the liveliest incident of the entire session occurred.

Alf Herrington arose and in loud tones announced that he had been asked by Miss Ellen J. Dortch to present for her a resolution which she wanted the editors to adopt before adjourning. He read the resolution, which was in two sections, but very short. The first section was to memorialize the Georgia legislature to extend state aid to effiarge the Girls' Normal and Industrial school at Milledgeville.

The second section was to open the State school at Milledgeville.

The second section was to open the State university to girls.

The latter section evidently created a stir among the editors. One editor was very prompt to say that he opposed the resolution, as it looked to the co-education of the sexes. Editor Jim Brown, of The Newman Her-Editor Jim Brown, of The Newnan Herald, was very positive in his opinions concerning the resolution "There is no need for us to memorialize the legislature," said he. "We memorialize it every week in the columns of our papers. We make the legislature. Every man here does more to influence the representative from his county than any other man. This commits us to this proposition, and I oppose it."

Mr. Herrington, in a few strong and spirited words, said that he could not conceive how any chivalrous man could oppose such a resolution. It merely was the ex-

such a resolution. It merely was the ex-pression, the endorsement of a sentiment. It was past all understanding how any man could find it in his heart to oppose the first section of the resolution. As for the second section, he did not urge it upon the con-

Mr. Brown again spoke in opposition to both sections of the resolution and other remarks were made on the same line. Miss Dortch advanced to the front from her position in the rear and said a few earnest words in behalf of her resolution. She said that she wanted the editors to help in such a laudable movement to assist the poor girls of Georgia. It was merely the expression of an endorsement of a movement which she understood was under way. President she understood was under way. President Chappel was going to ask the next legislature for an appropriation and an expression from the weekly editors would go a great way toward getting it.

Another editor arose to speak for the resolution, when Mr. Herrington stepped forward gramatically and said:

"I Withdraw it." Miss Dortch and others seemed surprised at the action, but before anything could be said a motion to adjourn had been carried Before the editors adjourned President Coleman stated that Manager Hugh Porter, of the Kimbali, who had been exceedingly vigilant in looking after the comfort of his guests, had stated that the editors could get their dinner at 11 o'clock if they wished it. The editors were requested to announce the number of dinners they wanted, so that preparations could be made accordingly. Alf Herrington paralyzed the con-vention by ordering seven straight dinners. Another editor followed up with three and a third was satisfied with two.

"You fellows are not going to eat anything while you are away, I suppose," said an editor who was not going on the excursion. The editors had a hearty dinner before going to the train.

It was a lively scene at the union depot twenty minutes before the editors departed About 200 people were present to see the press fellows depart, and gave them a rous-ing send off. Most of the editors are veteran tourists, as they have been excurting since they have been in the business. Laughing and jostling each other in char-acteristic fashion, the editors loaded them-acteristic rashion, the editors loaded themselves and baggage upon the waiting train, first seeing that their passes were secure. All was in readiness at noon, and the train whisked out of the depot in a hurry. The Seaboard officials gave the editors a fine practical demonstration of the way they do things.

The editors' special will reach Washington at 10 o'clock this morning. The Georgia delegation of congressmen and Mr. Claude Bennett will take charge of the editors while they are in Washington. Until noon tomorrow the editors will be quartered at the St. James. Of course, they will take terest around Washington.

They will reach New York at 6 o'clock tomorrow night. President Blalock has se-tomorrow night. President Blalock has secured quarters for the party at the Metropolitan, and when they are once registered at the hotel in New York it will be a go-as-you-please affair.

The editors will undoubtedly make a hit in Gotham. They are noted sight-seers, as well as striking in personal appearance, and the average member of the party will attract attention even on crowded Broadway. They can see more in a day than the average tourist, having a great deal of experience in seeing things, and there will not be a member of the party that will not be able to write a guide to New York when the trip is finished. Among the Editors.

Among the Editors.

President Sim Blalock was the busiest man among the editors yesterday. All the work of preparing for the trip devolved upon nim, and he managed it in such a thorough way as to make him forever solid with the editors of the state. It is a matter of regret with them that he would not consent to re-election.

A number of beautiful young ladies accompanied the editors on the trip. Among those who went were Miss Adah Evans, of Miledgeville; Miss Ross, of Macon; Miss Blanche Durant, of Atlanta, and Miss Florence Williams, of Valdosta. It will be a pleasant party, indeed.

One of the most chipper and lively in the party is Gus Morrow, of Jonesboro, the versatile genius, politician, newspaper man and story telier. He will add much to the pleasure of the trip.

Trox Bankston will be one of the prominent figures in the party as the editors stroll along Pennsylvania avenue today and along Broadway tomorrow. He never misses an editorial excursion.

This famous old remedy has no equal in curing sickness of this nature. It is quick in action and never-failing in results. Keep it by you. Sold everywhere. Double the quantity now sold for the same old price. Prepared only by

MONEY FACTORY.

Jim Lawshe's Establishment Turned Out Spurious Shekels |Galore.

FORSYTH HAS BROKEN THE RECORD

Captures the Richest Gang That Ever Oprated in the United States-Donnella's Assailant Said to Be Caught.

A package of newly made silver dollars, ave sets of molds nicely executed, and a lot of metal and other paraphernalia for the manufacture of spurious money were brought into the United States commissioner's room at the custom house yesterda; morning by Captain Donnella, of the secret service department, when the case of Jim Lawshe was called. Judge Broyles examined the outfit curiously.

"That's the largest and most complete supply I ever saw," he said, shaking hands in a cordial way with the officer and giving his congratulations on the clever catch. "Oh, it's nothing much," replied Captain Donnella in a deprecatory tone, "but I expect that Jim would have shoved a lot of the stuff off on the community if he had remained at large."

Lawshe smiled grimly and winked. It was only for a moment, however that he smiled. Jim was mad. He was very mad. There was a frown on his face when he first entered, and during the course of the trial this broad ned into a furious scowl. The object of his ire was a middle-aged man with a light mustache and slouch hat. When the list of witnesses was called over he responded to the name of Pat Enright and it was through information given by him that Jim Lawshe was captured. Several weeks ago Enright walked into the office of Captain Donnella. "I know where a fellow is manufacturing some counterfeit money," he said.

"Is that so?" asked Captain Donnella in an indifferent way. 'Yes, and he wanted me to go in with him and help him make it and pass it." At first the officer thought that the man was putting up a game on him, but upon questioning him closely was satisfied that he know something and could help him out. Enright told how Jim Lawshe had approached him and offered to sell him ter spurious dollars for six good ones, and said that Lawshe had a large supply of it.

Captain Donnella cautioned him to remain silent, and advised him to accept Lawshe's proposition to go into the business togeth-Enright consented and left the custom house determined to get in with the counterfeiter if possible.

That night he met the man he was searching for on Marietta street, and it would have given the criminal knowledge of Conan Doyle a big boost if he could have heard the wily schemes and deep-laid plots hatched up between the two men.

That night Enright made a call on Law she and they discussed the best way to dispose of their supply of money and the best way to make it. In fact they become boon companions, and in a short while all the schemes of the original counterfeiter were made known to the informer. He, in turn transmitted them on the sly to the officers

Last Tuesday night preparations were made for a raid and Captain Donnella, with several deputies, made their way to the stronghold of the counterfeiter, which was situated on the outskirts of the city in a secluded place. He relied upon the pres ence of Enright to aid them, but it appeared afterwards that the informer had been frightened off by something and did not show up. The raid was foiled and the officers waited until a more opportune time Enright promised to be on hand the follow ing Tuesday night and agreed to get everything in readiness for the capture and detection of Lawshe.

Night before last the officers left Atlanta at 10 o'clock and went out to the place. It was a small cabin, and when the men arrived no one seemed to be there. Pretty soon, however, a match was struck. Deputy Marshal Scott was at the back door. Captain Donnella was stationed at one of the windows and Deputy Mann was in the Deputy Scott could hear two men conversing in low tones on the inside. He recog-nized the voices as those of Lawshe and

He heard Enright speak first. "Say," said he to his companion, "I want to buy one of the big dollar molds." "All right," answered Lawshe. "Do you

'That's what," replied the other, "I want to carry it home with me."
"Well, I'll go and get it," Lawshe said, "but I'm not going down in that hole with this clean shirt on."

Lawshe pulled off the shirt and opened the back door. As he stepped out of the door Officer Scott shoved his gun in his face. Both of Lawshe's hands went up in a jiffy. The rest of the officers came around. When first placed under arrest Lawshe was in a surly mood and would not talk. Somehow he decided that this not talk. Somenow he dealed to fix was not best and began to laugh it off. "Oh, you won't find anything around here," he said to the men, as they began to search the place.

Captain Donnella picked up a piece of

"That's something I use in my trade," said Jim, "you know that I am a tinner."

The officer continued his search, finding different materials at different places about the room. From the direction that Lawshe had taken when he was arrested he knew that the molds were concealed outside the house. Outside of the house the officers went, and it was decided to investigate a suspicious looking place beneath the house. Down in this Captain Donnella went. He searched long and had almost determined to give up the search when the sight of a little box in a dark covers made his heart little box in a dark corner made his heart jump in his mouth. Quick as a flash he had his hand on it. The prize was a good one. Five molds, all made for different sizes of coin, were displayed and with them was a lot of other tools. No money had been found and this the officers were most anxious to obtain. Another long search followed and down in the cellar the men went again. again. Along the sills which supported the house a number of silver dollars were hid and it was not long before Uncle Sam's servants had their hands on them. They were all carried up in the house and sh to Lawshe. He strenuously denied his Donnella Feels Good. There was more than one reason why Captain Donnella should feel satisfied with himself yesterday. Besides his clever capture, he had just received notice that the desperade who shot him several years ago during his celebrated raid on the Driggs gang was supposed to be now in the custody of the New York officers. This information came in a marked copy of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

It is a strange coincidence also that the capture was made by Captain William Forsyth, so well known in Atlanta, who was changed to the New York division from this place a few months ago.

In every respect it is the most important capture of counterfeiters in the history of the government, and it will eternalize the work of Forsyth. In the gang are men who have made millions of spurious notes and shoved off countless numbers of dollars in the different cities of the United States.

To begin with Captain Donnella's side it is necessary to go back to the year 1889.

No man in the employment of the government is more reticent in the presence of newspaper men than Donnella and if it was left with him to relate the history of his next it would be forever scaled. his past it would be forever sealed. Some facts in regard to his remarkable career have leaked out, however, and the details of his famous capture of the Driggs gang are not unknown to old newspaper men. Captain Donnella has but recently been transferred to Atlanta.

In Ohio for a long while spurious paper money had been afloat, and, although thousands of dollars had been emptied into the different cities, no trace of the makers could be found.

Captain Donnella, by some strategy, located them in Dayton, and, with some of his deputies, started out to make the capture. They arrived at the plant and spotted

In the raid three were bagged, but the leader escaped. Before taking his leave he pulled his gun and fired. The ball pas through the ear of Captain Donnella and lodged in the wall. In making his escape the man carried off with him the plate with which most of the money had been manufactured.

It was a $10 plate of the issue 1875, with the head of Webs'er engraved on it. Ben Boyd, a former employe of the United States department of printing and engraving, did the work, and at the time of the capture of the gang was serving a term in the Joliet prison. That plate, which the man who shot Captain Donnella carried off, has turned up again, and there is where the glorious work of Captain Forsyth, the Atlanta man, comes in.

It reads like fiction, this story of Captain Forsyth's work and it outrivals the intri-cate creations of the most imaginative writers.

About three weeks ago a promoter, whose name is being withheld so that his life may not be imperiled by the diser for vengeance on the part of some of the crimnals still at large, inserted an advertisement in a big New York paper for "new inventions, patents, novelties and schemes of all kinds that will make money quickly.' This was answered in a few days by a letter which the man whose name has withheld thought smacked of the green goods variety.

Visited Captain Forsyth. He went to the secret service bureau and imparted his information to Captain Forsyth. The officer engaged him at once as a detective to help work up the case. A meeting between the man who inserted the advertisement and the fellow who answered it was arranger for. The promoter of the plot had $100 and he wished to buy ome money. The crook agreed to sell him $1,000 for that amount. It was good money; he would guarantee it, and he was positive it would pass anywhere. The counterfeit was produced and the promoter turned over $100. These bills were all markel.

No sooner had the transaction been concluded than the officers, led by Captain Forsyth, rushed in and captured the counterfeiter. He was an old man, well dressed, and was recognized as Masset, a man who kept a restaurant under the establishment where the Knox hats are manufactured. Masset squealed and gave the name the man who was working him. Upon his confession Russell D. Hoyt, the superinten-dent of a big hat factory, was afterwards arrested. Although Masset had told on Hoyt he would not or could not tell where the money was manufactured. He admitted that he had put many thousands of dollars of the money into circulation, but where it came from originally and whose hands it came from before it reached Hoyt he could

With this slight clue to work on, Captain Forsyth started out Sunday to trace Hoyt's antecedents and locate the man. He was found finally near Bethel, N. J., in company with a female accomplice. Forsyth and his men searched their luggage, and in a trunk filled with woman's apparel made an im

It was nothing more or less than a com plates used for printing $1 'Webster heads."-plates of the same kind that disappeared from Ohio when Captain

Donnella was shot. The officers learned that Hoyt had a farm near by and that his brother, Lorenzo Hoyt lived there. This brother had always stoo righ in the respect of the community and was very influential in church affairs. He was apparently indignant when the officers knocked at his door, and applied for admission. The house was handsomely furnished and every nook and corner in the place was searched. Even the carpets were taken up, but nothing rewarded their search until the cellar was reached.

Like Jim Lawshe, they had concealed their goods beneath the house. The box contained plates, rare plates for making gold certificates of the $20 species. The face plate bore the name of "Mystic River Na-tional bank," with the head of James A. Garfield and the signature of Blanche K. Bruce, the Mississippi negro, once registrar of the treasury department and James Gil fillan, treasurer. It was the series of 1882. Lorenzo Hoyt was told that he was under arrest, and then the officers turned their attention to the barn. Hoyt laughed at them, but Captain Forsyth was determined, and told Hoyt that he would plow up the whole place before he was satisfied.

Inside of ten minutes $12,000 in United States treasury notes was found sewed up in a canvas sack and buried a foot in the ground. To all appearances it had been placed there only a few days before. In a second barn Captain Forsyth came across more interesting matter. There was the frame of the printing press. An interesting find was a preparation of coffe with which the bills were soaked to give them the appearance of age. In the barn also were stacks of fiber paper and bottles of green, red and blue ink and linen of different kinds. To complete the outfit the officer found a fine set of engraver's tools, with which the plates had been executed.

All of these things were either buried or hidden away beneath the bundles of straw and hay. They completely filled a big farm wagon and the stock of paper alone weighed seventy-five pounds.

Jim Murphey, an engraver, was also arrested and carried to New York. Upon his arrival Tuesday Captain Forsyth was overwhelmed with congratulations and General Hazen, chief of the department at Washington came up in person to look after the affair and be on the field of action.

It has been pretty well ascertained by

It has been pretty well ascritained by communication with the Ohio authorities that the "Webster plate," found in Hoyt's possession is the ossession is the same one which was tak en away by the countrefeiter who put a hole in Captain Donnella's ear, and it is thought now that Murphey, the engraver, is the same man.

Captain Donnella preserved his usual mien when approached concerning the affair.

"Say, I wish you wouldn't mention anything about me in this," he said. "Just say all you want about Forsyth. There is no doubt about it, he has done the greatest piece of work in his line ever accomplished in this country. But you know I dont' care anything for newspaper notoriety, and I'd rather not be mentioned in connection with it. I'm mighty clad if they have got the rascal that did this, though," he said, rubbing his thumb against his ear.

"No one but a woman can understan this, but all women know it. Every atom of a woman's body is governed by a law of its own and hot weather seems to fight every one of these laws. A woman's sen sitive nerves are outraged by the heat. Her blood gets warmed up when she wants to be cool. Give Your Boy A Chance

A Boost in Life That Will Help Him and Won't Cost You Much

You can't build anything unless you first have a foundation, whether it's a 10-story hotel or a success. Neither a house nor a man can reach any great height unless it has something to stand on. You build a foundation for your home in order that your family may be protected. Now is it not equally wise to build a foundation for a success for your children in order that their future, too, may be protected?

Education is the only sure foundation which will elevate character and brains to the height where their possessor can reach the fruit which nature intended should be his. It is not the teaching that a boy receives, but the learning that counts in the race of life. You know it is the knowledge that you acquired by puzzling out your problems yourself, not that which was given you offhrnd by a perfunctory teacher, that has stood you in good stead.

The Encyclopedia Britannica is the learning of the world concentrated; it has all there is to a college education except the college buildings and the "larks of the students." Is it not worth

Mr. W. C. Carter, the clerk of the district court, accompanied by Messrs. Burrell Saunders and Walter T. Colquitt, will leave this morning on a short excursion for the hills and vales of Murray county. They will visit the country home of Mr. Carter, which is famed all over north Georgia at hospitality, and will feast on the Georgia watermelon, where it grows in the richest luxury of nature. The party will return to the city next Saturday afternoon.

Captain W. D. Ellis and Mr. W. P. Hill, masters in chancery, have been holding court for several days at the custom house, investigating the status of railroad litigation. A number of cases have been considered by the masters, and a large amount of business has been transacted. It may sound a little trite to say that a better selection could not have been made in the choice of Captain Ellis and Mr. Hill, but the praise is well deserved, as all who have had business before them are willing to testify.

The Bill Passed Authorizing the Exposi- Urges Better Education for the Children of Georgia.

IT MEANS OUR FUTURE PROSPERITY

Wholesome Advice Before the State Agricultural Society.

In addressing the semi-annual convention of the Georgia State Agricultural Society yesterday Governor Northen very strongly urged the need of better educational advantages throughout the state. He dwelt upon the importance of educating children in the rural districts of Georgia, who, taken as a whole, were not being educated. He referred to his home in Hancock, near which there was no white school, but several admirable schools for negroes. He sald it was time to begin developing the brain of Georgia, and the hearty applause showed how thoroughly this sentiment accorded with the views of those present.

He referred to the people going to Texas and said that they were yoing there because they could get better education than in Georgia. Schools must be improved, new ones planted, but it must not be forgotten that the greatest school of all and the one which is most sure to impress its teachings on the characters of the young is that universal school—the American home. Public schools, private schools, colleges, universities are all necessary in our civilization, but they can in no way make up for the lack of proper educational advantages in the home. It is the home environment that molds the character and shapes the destiny of our sons, and the proper selection of a home library is, therefore, a subject of supreme importance to every parent.

In this connection who can question the beneficent and far-reaching influence of the great educational enterprise of The Constitution. By introducing that great "home educator," the new Encyclopaedia Britannica in to the homes of the people it is making a college of the humblest cottage, for there is no subject within the range of human knowledge which is not fully treated in ruis gigantic work.

Governor Northen says the new edition of the great Britannica is a wonderful collection of useful information which he cannot endorse too highly, and yet Georgians can now obtain this valuable library for the small sutlay of only 10 certs a day, through the introducing offer of The A

There was, he said, a vast amount of musical talent in Atlanta now latent for the want of proper development. He was sure that if Augusta could support a conservatory of music Atlanta could do so, and be believed an enterprise of the kind would prove a financial success. It would bring musical talent of a high order from a dis-tance and prove an invaluable means of in-struction and entertainment for the young people of Atlanta.

10 Peachtree Street.

Many times men and women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present, allke to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some delicate or private disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper treatment given and directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

DR. HATHAWAY & CO., who make a true and genuine specialty of delicate and private diseases peculiar to men and women explain their remarkable success to this fact. They study each case thoroughly and direct their treatment to the cause, remove that and make permanent cures. This enables them to cure where others have falled. They are the acknowledged leaders in their specialty.

This legislative bill provides for the protection of the exposition by the United States government. This bill was at first a part of the amendment which was added to the sundry appropriation bill, and which provided for the appropriation of the sum of $200,000 to the

It was detached from that amendment at the suggestion of Senator Allison, not because of any opposition on his part to it, but simply because he thought that the amendment with these features was rather too cumbersome to be handled easily. The exposition committee agreed with Senator Allison, and this part of the amendment was detached and was put into a separate bill, which was passed yesterday, as above exated.

The features of the amendment which were detached were then embodied in a separate bill which was drafted by President C: A. Collier and Hon. H. H. Cabaniss.

He reviewed the record and platforms of the democratic party since its organization under Thomas Jef ferson, and contrasted it with the record of the republican party, showing that democracy was entitled to the award of prefer ence, both on the score of pledge and per-formance. He sailed into the doctrines of the people's party and pointed out the fallacy of the legislation which their leaders had attempted. The government owner-ship of railroads was discussed, and it was shown by the district attorney that every the people over and above the profits of the road. It was also shown that tariff rates were lower and salaries higher in this country than in countries where railroads were operated by the government. The experi-ment had proven a failure wherever it had been in operation.

On yesterday promptly at 12:30 Mr. M. Rich, the receiver for the Ladies' Bazaar Co., sold the entire assets, amounting to $39,092.89, to Messrs E. M. Bass & Co., of this city. The price paid was $7,500 cash. Mr. Bass, on being questioned about the sale, remarked that it was one of the best purchases he had ever made, since the assets foot up $39,092.89, for which I paid $7,500, thus buying the stock at 19½c on the dollar; and it is a good, clear stock of high grade goods, but I only purchased it because I saw that it was a rare bargain. Now I am going to close it out, lock, stock and barrel, right where the goods are, in the Ladies' Bazaar Co.'s old stand, and if the people of Atlanta ever saw goods sold cheap, they will see them next Monday, when we will open this sale. & Co.
